COUNTY TEACHERS GET MONTH'S PAY

Longino Designated To Replace Johnson on Welfare Board; Regrets Expressed in Probe Move.

Charges of a shortage of $700.03 in the cash accounts of J. Walton Simmons, clerk of the Fulton superior court, made in a semi-annual audit by Respass and Respass, county auditors, were referred yesterday to Solicitor General John A. Boykin for "investigation and action" by Fulton county commissioners.

The commissioners, meeting in special session, also voted to appropriate $37,500 to be matched with a similar fund from the county school department with which to pay county teachers an extra month during the summer. For the past several years, teachers have been paid only nine months in the year.

Commissioner George F. Longino was elected to succeed Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson as the commission's representative on the Fulton county board of welfare from which position Johnson announced his intention of resigning last week.

The commissioners considered the Simmons matter briefly at the special meeting called by Dr. Charles R. Adams, chairman, to discuss finances. The motion to refer it to the solicitor general was made by Commissioner Johnson, who prefaced his action with the statement, "I regret that this has come up and that I have to do this."

In the auditor's report, Simmons' cash accounts over the six-month period ending March 31, 1936, were reported as being $700.03 out of balance, that amount of cash being unaccounted for. Irregularities in administration of the clerk's office were also charged, the auditors holding that Simmons is likewise responsible for the irregularities in the cash books. The auditors asserted that Simmons did not comply with the law in paying out fees collected by his office for other depart-

Metal Cap Fatal To Knoxville Girl

Hemorrhage Terminates
Plan for 3d Operation for Pauline Lane.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—(AP)—The metal cap of a cigarette lighter she inhaled into her lung nearly three weeks ago caused the death of 16-year-old Pauline Lane today.

Temple University hospital said no operation was attempted there because a lung abscess developed from the inch-long piece of metal. There was a sudden, fatal hemorrhage today.

The girl arrived from Knoxville, Tenn., last Thursday after two unsuccessful operations there.

Pauline's cheerfulness was the subject of comment by physicians and nurses. Ironically, her happy spirit was accountable indirectly for her death.

She was holding the lighter top between her teeth when she laughed and gulped it into her windpipe. She withstood the nervous strain of two operations in Knoxville and greeted newsmen with a smile after a long train ride to Philadelphia.

She was "happy and cheerful and talked as usual to the nurses last night," the hospital reported.

BORAH LOSES, 47-5, IN OHIO PRIMARY

'Favorite Son' Taft, Backed
by Knox Supporters,
Is Overwhelming Choice

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 13.—(AP)—Ohio primary voters had apportioned tonight the state's 52 important republican convention delegates—47 to a "favorite son" candidate and five to Senator Borah.

This was the unofficial result of Tuesday's balloting with less than 500 of the state's 8,579 precincts unreported.

Backed by the state organization, the "favorite son" forces supporting Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, apparently elected eight delegates at large and 38 district delegate-candidates.

Borah won two places in the Akron industrial district and one each in three other districts.

Elected delegates, although nominally committed to support at the Idaho senator's chief supporters.

Taft interpreted the result to show "republican voters of Ohio are in favor of choosing a candidate and writing a platform uncompromisingly opposed to President Roosevelt and the New Deal."

Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester publisher, led the "favorite son" slate of eight delegates at large with 229,017 votes in 7,140 precincts. He has.

ROBINSON SEEKS PLANS TO REVIVE CANAL IN FLORIDA

Democratic Leaders Ask
Investigation of Project
by Special Board With President Authorizing
Funds To Continue Work

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(UP)—A plan for possible revival of the $146,000,000 Florida canal, jettisoned by congress when it refused to approve additional funds for it this spring, was introduced in the senate today by Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, democrat, Arkansas.

Robinson introduced a resolution calling for investigation by a special board of the canal project with a view to authorizing the President to make allotments for its continuation if "justified." The resolution, providing also for a similar board for the Panamaquid tideless project in Maine, was referred to the commerce committee.

The move by Robinson was the first ray of light for the Florida project since the senate killed a rider on the War Department appropriations bill, drafted by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, democrat, Florida, which would have provided $12,000,000 for continuation of work on the canal.

Work Grinding to Halt.

Since congressional rejection of additional allocations, work on the huge project gradually has been grinding to a halt. Hundreds of workmen have been dismissed as companies complete contracts and stopped work pending a new flow of funds.

Originally the canal was financed by the federal government.

Governor Issues State-

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—(AP)—Thomas H. Robinson Jr., last of the nation's kidnapers to be captured, pleaded guilty to the Stoll kidnapping and was sentenced to life imprisonment here tonight.

The 20-year-old former inmate of a Tennessee insane asylum stolidly heard federal Judge Elwood Hamilton pronounce sentence immediately after he had said in an almost inaudible voice, "Guilty, your honor."

Robinson slugged Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, young Louisville society matron, with a lead pipe and snatched her from her home here October 10, 1934.

For more than 19 months he eluded the federal agents while Mahan, Karpis and other major criminals were being netted. Robinson spent most of his time traveling between New York and California and federal agents said he spent freely the $50,000 paid him for freeing Mrs. Stoll. He had held her a week in an Indianapolis apartment.

Monday night he was taught in.

DANIEL PAYS OUT SURRENDERED CASH

To Pay Penalty Demand

The Atlanta banks yesterday were "undecided" whether or not to meet Governor Talmadge's demands for 7 per cent interest on the funds which were tied up pending adjudication of their court cases growing out of the Governor's dictatorship of state finances. It was learned that all of the banks have referred the demands of the Governor to their attorneys and probably will be guided by the decision of their counsel.

Meanwhile two of the large oil companies, the Sinclair and the Standard, yielded to the Governor's demands and sent checks covering the interest to J. B. Daniel, the Governor's treasurer. The checks were for slightly more than $1,000 each and covered interest on gasoline taxes held by the companies since April 20.

Interest Totals $39,000.

The interest allegedly due from the Atlanta banks totals about $35,000, half of which is due from the Fulton National Bank and the balance about equally divided between the Citizens and Southern National and the First National.

It was learned yesterday that the Governor will not demand the 7 per cent from the First National of Marietta, or other out-of-town banks which withheld funds from the bank cases in court.

Meanwhile Daniel began distribution

REVISION CERTAIN IN TAX MEASURE

House Bill Would Have Aided Many Corporations, Says Morgenthau.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—The senate finance committee was definitely headed tonight toward a revision of the house tax bill, with the ultimate form depending upon treasury estimates of the revenue that may be expected from various substitutes.

A renewed hunt for alternatives was undertaken today after Secretary Morgenthau testified in executive session that nearly half the corporations which made more than a million dollars in 1934 would have had their taxes cut in half or even eliminated entirely under the administration proposal for taxing undistributed profits.

Treasury experts at the same time countered with an estimate that an equal number of these corporations would have paid a sharp increase in taxes. They asserted more material favorable to the administration's tax proposal would be submitted tomorrow.

Members of the finance committee nevertheless forecast almost unanimously that the house bill would be revised—possibly along the lines suggested by several members for levying a flat tax on all corporate income surpluses on undistributed profits.

Treasury experts were working

ZEPPELIN LANDS ON GERMAN SOIL

Precedent-Breaking Nazi
Big Ship Rests at Frankfort-on-Main Field.

FRANKFURT-ON-MAIN, Germany, May 14.—(Thursday)—(AP)—The Zeppelin Hindenburg landed here at 4:35 a. m. (10:55 p. m. Atlanta time) today, completing a record-breaking flight from Lakehurst, N. J., to the United States.

The German dirigible took 48 hours, 27 1/2 minutes to make its return flight. It took 61 hours, 55 minutes for its crossing from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, New Jersey.

By JEANNE STURGES.

ABOARD THE DIRIGIBLE HINDENBURG, EN ROUTE TO FRANKFURT, Germany, May 13.—(UP)—We entered the last lap of the flight from Lakehurst, N. J., to Frankfurt-on-Main at dusk tonight when the great sky liner flew over the southern tip of Ireland.

The ship was making a steady 75 knots an hour as we neared England and the prospect of a new transatlantic dirigible record were good. The present record, held by the Graf Zeppelin, is 55 hours and 22 minutes. The officers of the Hindenburg hoped to land at Frankfurt-on-Main in about an even 55 hours from the start at Lakehurst.

The Hindenburg passed the half-way point of the flight at 11:30 a. m. today, but it was indicated that the dirigible's representation will be reduced to the level of a mere footnote in the history of the world.

After receiving free reign from President Miklas to form a new cabinet along the lines he deemed best for the country's welfare, Schuschnigg's first official act was to freeze Starhemberg, former vice-chancellor and leader of a powerful military group, out of the new government.

The present moment was said to have been chosen deliberately to emphasize the democrats' disapproval of Starhemberg's telegram to Premier Benito Mussolini congratulating him on occupation of Addis Ababa last week. Starhemberg has been a strong factor in linking Italy with Austria as virtual guarantor of the latter's independence against Germany's desire for union of Austria and Germany.

On the eve of Starhemberg's recent trip to Rome, the democratic element

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—The $3,000,000,000 Frazier-Lemke farm debt refinancing bill was battered down to defeat today in the house when democratic stalwarts swung into line behind their leaders.

Speaker Byrnes announced the vote as 235 to 142.

Branded "inflationary" by its opponents and defended as the salvation of the debt-ridden farmers, the bill was crushed only after the sharpest battle of the session.

Five-Year Battle.

Sponsors, sent down to defeat after five years of hard work to bring the measure to a vote, tried vainly to swing the tide in its favor by offering amendment after amendment designed to lure more votes. Some were accepted but did not change the final result.

One of these would have permitted loans up to no more than 80 per cent of the fair value of farms, whereas the bill originally had called for 100 per cent. Some backers of the legislation, which would allow the issuance of $3,000,000,000 of new money, had predicted this would bring in 40 more votes.

Fresh charges of inflation, "printing press money," and "greenback legislation" were hurled at the measure throughout the day's uproarious session. Supporters of the bill snapped back that it would save the homes of millions of farmers and spoke of "poison" pervading the chamber.

Byrnes Quits Rostrum.

Speaker Byrnes, who rarely becomes directly involved in a floor scrap, left the speaker's chair at one point to read a letter from President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor.

Senate Passes Bill To Limit Cotton Sales

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—The senate passed today and sent to the house a resolution to limit the amount of cotton that could be marketed by the Commodity Credit Corporation prior to August 31 to 750,000 bales.

The corporation has announced plans for disposing of 1,000,000 bales of its huge holdings of about 4,500,000 bales held under 12-cent loans. Between $20,000 and $60,000 bales have been withdrawn and sold by farmers already.

Chairman Smith, democrat, South Carolina, submitted the resolution to the senate with the explanation it was designed to "restrict the amount that can go on the market during the slack period."

Methodists Retreat From Economic Stand

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 13.—(UP)—A stand on social and economic problems retreating from that of four years ago which caused dissension within the church was recommended to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church tonight by its committee on the state of the church.

The report advocated a planned and "personality-making" economy but admitted a difference of opinion over methods of attainment.

It omitted the attack on the profit motive in business made in pronouncement of the last general conference.

The recommendation was made shortly after Dr. Clarence True Wilson, for 26 years executive secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, asked to be retired and promptly was elected secretary emeritus.

It made no attack on the unofficial Methodist Federation for Social Service, whose avowed aim is abolition of democratic methods of the profit motive in American business.

'EARL OF PELHAM' REBUKED BY JUDGE

Lee Told To Cease Wast-

On Charges of Fraud.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Robert E. S. Lee, the redoubtable Earl of Pelham, who has generated an unprecedented public interest in himself by disavowing a style to which the United States district court has been accustomed, was pulled up sharply yesterday by Federal Judge William H. Barrett and emerged from the rebuke a different and chastened barrister.

"You are wasting, wasting, wasting time," said Judge Barrett in his first display of impatience. "I am trying to give you every chance I can, but I am not going to stand for it much longer."

"I have exhibited what I consider the most wonderful self-control, but we must limit ourselves in this case to the things that are really helpful," Lee bowed from the waist. He turned back to his cross-examination of Professor J. F. Stengel, former statistician and sales manager of the defunct American Bond & Share Corporation, and thenceforward during the trial he held himself in check and exhibited an air that a physician could readily recognize as a perfect bedside manner.

His voice was low and modulated to even tones. It was never lifted and the only indication of internal disturbance was a recurrent evidence of perspiration on the back of the neck that he mopped again and again with his handkerchief.

He reached the peak of his questioning of Stengel when he asked: "Isn't it a fact that since the beginning of our association with the American Bond & Share Corporation, I have been a complete and utter detestation?"

"Yes," answered Stengel quietly. "Isn't it a fact that you reciprocated your own detestation?"

"Yes," Lee bowed gratefully.

He resumed his monotone, quiet and easily. Lee is a most competent cross-examiner. Many of the leaders of the Atlanta bar have dropped in at times to listen to Lee and all agree that Lee is a thoroughly competent, shrewd, well-informed lawyer. Lee's tactics have been centered on cramming into the record hours after his capture. Judge Hamilton directed Robinson be sent to Atlanta federal penitentiary with the usual specification that he was subject to transfer to any other federal prison upon order of the United States attorney general. Loomis E. Crenner, United States marshal, left with him for Atlanta tonight, where the party is expected at 8:35 o'clock.

ROBINSON SENTENCED TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT

All seats in the large federal courtroom were filled as the kidnaper was brought in after a long wait for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Robinson Sr., of Louisville, to arrive and confer with him and his counsel, E. B. Gabbard and Clem Higgins. The kidnaper's wife, who started divorce proceedings after she and the elder Robinson were acquitted last November of complicity in the kidnapping, was not present. Nor was the kidnaper's 5-year-old son, Jimmy, who has been told his father is dead.

Mother Sobs.

Robinson came in manacled to a federal agent and with his mother clinging to his arm. The mother who had cried softly after visiting her son before the arraignment, recovered her composure, as did her husband and her sister. The buzz of conversation stopped. A court attaché turned off a large fan.

Judge Hamilton read the first count of the indictment, charging conspiracy to kidnap. Pointing out the other two defendants had been acquitted, he dismissed that count. Then he read the second count, charging the defendant had abducted Mrs. Stoll and carried her across a state line, and asked: "How do you plead?"

"Guilty, your honor," Robinson replied.

Despite the quiet in the room, Robinson's voice was so low Bunk Gardner, United States district attorney, turned to an assistant and asked what the plea was.

Life Sentence.

"It is the sentence of this court," said Judge Hamilton, "that you be confined for the term of your natural life in the penitentiary." The judge's voice was calm but his slowly spoken words, in contrast to the kidnaper's plea, were clearly audible. The order that Robinson be sent to Atlanta followed and he was put on an 8:15 (Atlanta time) train for there tonight.

Manacled again to a federal agent, Robinson was led back to the marshal's office. He walked stiffly and stared as in a daze over the brief proceedings which resulted in a life sentence.

Before the parents went back to the detention cell for a farewell, it was reported they had urged him to plead guilty impelled by the hope of a parole after 16 years. The father had said earlier today he wanted him to plead innocent on insanity grounds.

Asked when she was going back to Nashville, the mother replied, "I don't know yet. If they are going to take my boy away tonight, I may go home right away." She repressed sobs as she spoke.

A few minutes later she was back in the marshal's office, clutching her son through the bars of the little cell, pulling him as close to her as she could. The father sat in the cell. Both parents were crying. Robinson, looking depressed, appeared to be trying to console them.

Before leaving Nashville the elder Robinson failed to obtain as defense counsel Monte S. Ross, assistant city attorney at Nashville, who successfully defended Robinson Sr. and Mrs. Robinson Jr. at their trials last fall for complicity in the kidnapping. Ross withdrew after Mayor Hilary

Howse, of Nashville, said: "I don't want any of my attorneys to act as defense counsel in a kidnapping case. We need his services in the city government."

ATLANTANS ADDRESS MISSIONARY MEETING

Baptist Home Missions Convention Closes Session in St. Louis.

By JOE BURTON.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 13.—Atlanta had a prominent place in today's program of the 48th annual convention of the Southern Baptist Convention at Dr. J. B. Lawrence, Miss Emma Leachman and Mrs. Noble Y. Beall, all of Atlanta, addressed the closing session tonight.

Dr. Lawrence, executive secretary-treasurer of the home mission board, had charge of the program as the missionary work of Baptists in the south was featured.

Twenty-five hundred Baptists, here for the W. M. U. meeting and for the Southern Baptist convention sessions which begin tomorrow, heard the addresses on home missions. Announcement was made by Mrs. F. W. Armstrong, president, that the Annie W. Armstrong offering made by the W. M. U. in March to home missions had exceeded the goal of $100,000. This news, the president stated, was the most thrilling of the two-day convention.

At the afternoon session a goal of $107,000 was adopted for the Annie W. Armstrong offering for next year.

Dr. Lawrence spoke on "The Unfinished Task of Home Missions." He called attention to the work still to be done, including the evangelization of 24,000,000 people in the south.

Miss Leachman, field worker of the home mission board, spoke of the heritage given to Baptists by the home mission board in its past activities. She cited the establishment of churches and schools as evidence of the foresight of early Baptist leaders.

Mrs. Beall, missionary with her husband to the negroes, told the women of their "glorious opportunity of helping 10,000,000 negroes by correctly interpreting Christ to them, and by publishing literature for their organizations."

LEGACY MUST BE PAID FROM ESTATE ASSETS

A legacy willed out of a particular fund must be paid out of the general assets of an estate if the special fund does not prove sufficient, the supreme court ruled yesterday. The court ordered the executors of the estate of the late George E. King, pioneer hardware dealer of Atlanta, to pay $35 monthly to Mrs. Josephine King. Mrs. King is the widow of the hardware man's brother, Horatio King.

The supreme court held that a will ordering a legacy out of a certain fund meant that payment should be made from that fund if convenient but, if not so, out of general assets.

In its decision the high court upheld a decision of Judge John D. Humphries of the Fulton superior court.

Five of Georgia's New Areas Being Turned Into Recreational Spots.

More than 4,000 acres in five of Georgia's new state park areas are being developed for public recreation, it was revealed yesterday by the National Park Service, after a compilation of reports at the regional office in Atlanta.

Tracts range from 1,435 acres at the largest, Pine Mountain State Park, near Warm Springs to 282 acres at the smallest, Vogel, at Neal Gap, near Blairsville. Areas of the other three parks are Little Ocmulgee, near McRae, 935 acres; Fort Mountain, at Chatsworth, 727 1/2, and Chehaw, at Albany, 605.

In addition, three other parks recently were turned over to the state for maintenance. They are Santo Domingo, near Brunswick, 370 1/2 acres; Alexander H. Stephens, near Crawfordville, 217, and Indian Springs, near Jackson, 159.

The chain of new parks are being developed by the Civilian Conservation Corps, under the joint supervision of state authorities and the National Park Service. Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, heads the CCC park program.

Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton, is Georgia park authority. J. H. Gadsby, regional office of the national service, is in charge of the technical work. The nation-wide branch of planning and state co-operation, maintained by the national service, is under the direction of Conrad L. Wirth.

COST OF GOVERNMENT UNDER AVERAGE HERE

Per Capita Expenditures by Municipality Well Below National Figure.

The cost of government in the city of Atlanta for 1934 was well below the national average for cities in Atlanta's population class, according to figures released yesterday by the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Census, Washington.

Atlanta expended $8,808,054 for all government costs in 1934, comprising operation and maintenance of general departments, operation and maintenance of public service enterprises, interest and outlays, the report shows.

General departments in Atlanta cost $26.30 per capita, while operation and maintenance of public service enterprises cost $1.57 per capita and interest another $2.73 per capita. This pushed the total per capita cost for the year to approximately $30.60.

The lowest per capita cost recorded in cities of Atlanta's class was San Antonio, Texas, where only $5,513,107 was expended for the same services in 1934. General departments cost $14.21 there, public service enterprises, 97 cents, and interest $6.51, placing the total per capita cost about $22. San Antonio's population was listed at 231,542 in 1930.

Yonkers, N. Y., with a population of 134,646 in 1930, as compared to 270,366 for Atlanta in the same year, led the entire bracket in costs for 1934.

Yonkers had a budget of $14,418,019 for the same period, which was listed for Atlanta. A total of $66.55 per capita was spent for general departments; $2.19 for public service enterprises and $13.76 for interest. This made the total per capita cost for Yonkers about $83 per capita.

ments and badly stated that he is "kiting" his collections.

Vote Is Unanimous.

When Johnson introduced his motion to refer the entire matter to Boykin, Commissioner Longino said, "We have to pass this on into the hands of the proper authorities." The commissioners voted unanimously for Johnson's motion.

Frank R. Fling, clerk of the commission, was instructed to turn over to Boykin the auditor's report of the clerk's office.

Simmons him denied yesterday that his accounts are short. He issued the following statement yesterday morning:

"I desire to say that the statements are so misleading I feel the facts should be made public.

"This office has accumulated in the last six years nearly $350 worth of bad checks. Entries on the dockets made by clerks working thereon show in the same period of time a similar amount credited to various cases but not appearing on the cash book.

"My opinion is they are in the main ordinary errors which may occur at any time. They represent an accumulation of over six years and have been known all this time.

"The bond in the Clements case was paid to the bondman when the party convicted was pardoned. I reported to the auditor that I had paid the bond by check and that the bond money was on hand. They claim I was short this amount.

"This money is in the bank to the credit of the office account now. There remains less than $200 to account for and this is on hand to be deposited when I can find the particular items to credit it against.

"Absurd Charges."

"I deny most emphatically the insinuation that my accounts are short. I have given little attention to these recurring rumors but I put everyone on notice now that slanders and slurs on my name will be resented and I shall resort to every means at my command to handle anyone making these absurd charges.

"I do not propose for my family to be embarrassed by some who seem to have no purpose other than, as one of them put it, to 'get Simmons'."

Disposing of much routine business during the afternoon the commissioners, all of whom are members of the entertainment committee of the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia which begins its annual convention here today, followed the grand jury recommendation that the county appropriate $1,000 for entertainment purposes.

Commissioner Johnson is chairman of the committee and Dr. Adams, Longino, and Commissioners J. A. Ragdale and Ed L. Almand are serving with him.

Transportation Provided.

The commissioners voted to provide transportation for each member of the board because of the traveling about the county each has to do.

Warning that county employees under the jurisdiction of the commission will be discharged unless honest debts are paid was voiced by the commissioners.

Jere Wells, county school superintendent, told the commissioners that he will be able to set aside $37,500 from his budget with which to pay county teachers a half-month's pay each during the summer, and Longino introduced a motion for the county to provide a like amount for the other half-month salaries.

Commissioner Johnson said he favored appropriating $50,000. It was agreed that the commissioners will consider other arrangements for the school teachers later in the year if revenues warrant added expenditure.

The veterans' service office was given $68,000 to pay Confederate pensions, a past due payment carried since September, 1933.

The Governor yesterday issued a statement saying that the 7 per cent interest would be collected. Asserting that the interest is legal, Talmadge declared: "The banks collect legal interest due and now the shoe is on the other foot."

Commissioners Host to State Association Convention

The Fulton board of county commissioners, hosts to the annual convention of the state county commissioners' association this week, are shown yesterday at a special board meeting where charges of a shortage in the cash accounts of J. W. Simmons, clerk of the Fulton superior court, were referred to the solicitor general for "investigation and action."

—let millions of Americans tell you how they are getting what they want out of life

People no longer say, "You have to die to win" with life insurance. They know better now. They know they win both ways.

They know that if anything should happen to them, their dependents will not be in want. And if they live, life insurance will bring them financial security in their later years.

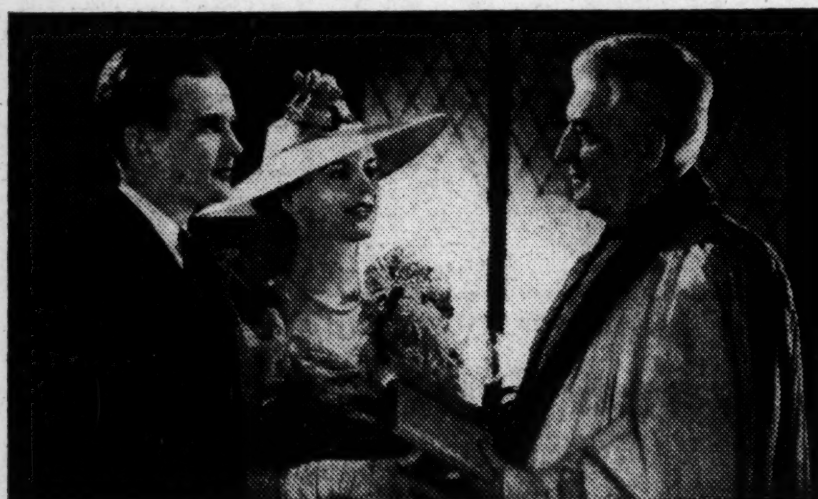

That is what life insurance is for . . . to lift the load of uncertainty from the shoulders of those who are willing to plan their future.

When your life insurance representative gives you the booklet, "Seven Wise Men," be sure to read it carefully—thoughtfully.

It explains very simply how you—on your present income—can start a plan that means security for your family if you die, and security for your wife and yourself if you live.

The sooner you plan your future . . . the better your future will be

1. H.B.L. met the girl through luck, but he isn't trusting her future to luck. If he dies, life insurance policy No. 4,346,070 will provide for her. If he lives, they will both enjoy an income from it.

2. O.T.M.—born lucky, with a dad who doesn't believe in luck. Life insurance policy No. 176,574 will see him through college when the time comes, even if his father should no longer be living.

3. N.F.M. is building the home he and his wife have always dreamed about. The plans include life insurance policy No. 897,748. It will pay off the mortgage for his wife, if he should die.

4. H.L.H. and wife are on the passenger list of this world cruise. He planned it years ago. Life insurance policy No. 63,956 made it possible. Their money worries are over.

directed a Colonel Frank Knox-for-president movement in Ohio.

In district congressional races, at least 15 of 32 congressional candidates endorsed by Father Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice won nominations.

BORAH ACCUSES G. O. P. OF DUPLICITY

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—Senator Borah today said the men in control of the republican party "have already demonstrated that they care nothing about constitutional integrity or the preservation of state rights."

"The men who are in control," he continued, "have already demonstrated their lack of integrity in hypocrisy and intellectual dishonesty."

In New York, in Illinois and in Ohio, for the purpose of securing the votes of the colored people, they have advocated a measure (the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill) which strikes at the very heart of state sovereignty and, if adopted, would utterly destroy the fundamental principle of our dual sovereignty of government.

"They have either been guilty of a willful betrayal of one of the most fundamental principles of our system of government or they have been guilty of the deliberate deception of the colored voter."

"Doubtless the platform at the Cleveland convention will have much in it about the preservation of the constitution and the rights of states. There will be much said about the great debt of gratitude the people of this country owe to the supreme court for its decisions in the NRA and the AAA cases, and protecting the integrity of the state."

All the candidates for delegateships to the democratic national convention were pledged to support the popular choice.

F. D. R. AND LONDON
AHEAD IN W. VIRGINIA

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 13.—(AP)—Thirteen delegates listed as supporting Governor Alf M. Landon for the republican presidential nomination led tonight in scattered returns from West Virginia's presidential preference primary.

The state has 16 delegate votes.

Leo J. Chassee, of Milwaukee, Wis., offered the lone opposition to Senator Borah for the popular vote. Joseph Costreman, of New Hampshire, opposed Roosevelt. In 1,300 precincts of the state's 2,347 the vote was: Roosevelt, 160,345; Borah, 48,349.

All the candidates for delegateships to the democratic national convention were pledged to support the popular choice.

Subject of Discussion
Tomorrow.

Resolutions condemning the proposed limitation of the tax to 15 mills will in all probability be adopted by the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia, which begins its annual convention at 9 o'clock this morning at the Ansley hotel.

Commissioners are expected to follow the attitude of the association's board of managers, which declared that county governments will virtually collapse if the 15-mill tax limitation proposal is voted in the September elections as a constitutional amendment.

The tax situation and the effect of the 15-mill limitation will be fully discussed Friday afternoon by former Governor Slaton, while the three constitutional amendments to be voted on this fall will be the subject of an address by Judge J. Ogden Persons, of Forsyth, this afternoon prior to a round-table discussion of county problems by the commissioners.

Harry Brown, state director of extension work, of Athens, will speak on "The New Farm Program" Friday morning. Routine business of the association and the election of officers will be taken up Saturday morning.

The convention opens at 9 o'clock this morning with registration, but will not be officially started until Friday morning, when Fulton Commissioner George F. Longino delivers his president's address. Dr. Charles R. Adams, Fulton board chairman, and Major James L. Key will give addresses of welcome to the commissioners then also. A number of other speeches are on the extensive program.

For entertainment the commissioners will be guests of DeKalb Commissioner C. A. Matthews at a barbecue Friday afternoon and of Fulton county at a banquet that night. Goodies Yancy will present his "Silver Slipper Revue" following the dinner and a dance will be given on the Ansley roof.

Approximately 600 commissioners are expected to register during the day.

WHITFIELD CASE WITNESSES FREED

Court Order Obtained for Release of Man and Woman.

The release of Mrs. J. J. Roberts and Louis Lisette, held as material witnesses in connection with the mysterious death of Robert Whitfield, WPA personnel manager, was ordered yesterday by Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court.

Lisette and Mrs. Roberts were held as material witnesses when they became known as the last persons to have seen Whitfield before his lifeless body was discovered on the Peachtree-Dunwoody road April 10 by passersby.

They stated they were visiting a friend who lived near the spot where Whitfield was found, and that they had left him in their car while making a friendly call. When they returned, he was gone, they said. The friend they were visiting told county police that while the two were in her house, a neighbor telephoned to ask about the "excitement" on the road nearby. They all looked out the window and several cars stopped at the place where Whitfield was discovered. The friend said she knew Mrs. Roberts and Lisette got out of their car and left Whitfield in it.

Mrs. Roberts and Lisette had been held in default of bond but were released yesterday by court order.

W. R. BARRY PASSES AT RESIDENCE HERE

He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Miss Kathleen Barry; his mother, Mrs. E. D. Biggs, of Tampa; four sisters, Mrs. Frank Harrison, Mrs. L. L. Moore and Mrs. W. T. Stallings, all of Atlanta, and Mrs. C. E. Adams, of Tampa; one brother, T. P. Barry, of Tampa.

Mr. Barry was a member of the Presbyterian church and a Mason. He had lived in Atlanta for a number of years.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backaches, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

JUDGE COLLAPSES ON FEDERAL BENCH

Lack of Courtroom Ventilation Too Much for Marvin Underwood.

Intensive efforts of the United States government to air-condition the federal courtrooms in the old postoffice building resulted yesterday in the collapse of Judge E. Marvin Underwood on his bench, a victim of the oppressive heat. Laborers have been busy in both courtrooms in the old postoffice building since January 1. In the circuit court of appeals courtroom, walls have been ripped out and tiling to improve the acoustics has been installed. As a first step toward the air-conditioning process, the windows on Forsyth street have been rebuilt and double windows now are shutting out the noises of automobiles and general traffic from the street. As a result, the windows are sealed and there is no ventilation. The air-conditioning engines have never been installed, and it was in this atmosphere of faulty ventilation that Judge Underwood became sick yesterday and was compelled to adjourn court shortly before noon. Judge Underwood went to his home, after assuring lawyers and court attendants he would have fans installed throughout the room until the air-conditioning machinery could be put into operation.

HIT-RUN ACCIDENT MAY PROVE FATAL

Youth Hurlled 15 Feet by Car; Negro Escapes After Chase.

Knocked more than 15 feet and then run over by a car operated by a negro hit-and-run driver yesterday afternoon, Baughn Green, 12, of 55 Krog street, was in serious condition last night at Grady hospital. According to police investigation, the boy was walking with a companion, James West, 18, of 719 Lake avenue, when the car struck them at the corner of Cain and Hilliard streets. Baughn was hit directly. At the hospital, it was found the boy had suffered had lacerations about the head and several broken ribs, which caused a collapse until today because he was propped by his friends. The vandals hammered the statues to bits but left untouched the 90-foot memorial, "The Rainbow Arch" the product of 15 years labor.

Work of sculptor ruined by vandals. NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—George Grey Barnard, 70-year-old sculptor, disclosed today that six pieces of statutory he recently completed were smashed by vandals who broke into his studio Saturday. Barnard said he did not notify po-helped Pauline keep her buoyant spirit.

The operation to remove the metal was to be performed in the clinic of Dr. Chevalier Jackson, famed inventor of a perfected bronchoscope.

KNOXVILLE SADDENED BY NEWS OF DEATH

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 13.—(P)—"Pauline Lane is dead."

The word from Philadelphia, where the 16-year-old girl succumbed after a courageous battle against the effects of a metal cap lodged in her lung, spread rapidly today up and down the streets of the little neighborhood where Pauline had been known and loved.

Neighbors and friends gathered at the humble home of the Lanes above a grocery store and tried to console the frail, little mother, Mrs. James Lane, who had three other children gathered about her.

"Why, Pauline talked to us over long distance telephone Monday night," the mother sobbed. "She said she was homesick, but was getting along fine. We thought she was going to get well."

Even as Pauline was dying, her father, who peddles coal for a living, was attempting to raise funds to go to his daughter's bedside. She had asked him to come, he said.

Pauline's mother, who weighs 78 pounds and is in poor health, was unable to go to Pauline's bedside.

Dr. Reese Patterson, who took the girl to the clinic of Dr. Chevalier Jackson in Philadelphia at his own expense after two operations here had failed to remove the object, could not be reached for comment.

Pauline, who had a part-time job as a city playground worker, was playing at the home of a friend the afternoon of April 24. She held a cigarette lighter cap between her teeth. She laughed and it slipped down her windpipe.

Special Tools No Use.

A Knoxville bronchoscopist was unsuccessful in his first attempt to dislodge the plug. Special forceps were ordered from Philadelphia and a second operation performed four days later. Again the specialist was unable to grasp the hard-edged object which had become tightly imbedded in the lung tissue.

Last Thursday night Pauline was placed aboard a train on a stretcher and taken to Philadelphia, accompanied by Dr. Patterson.

She joked with friends at the station, munched on an ice cream cone, and spoke confidently of returning home soon.

Dr. Patterson described her then as one of "the pluckiest patients I ever knew."

PHYSICIANS HERE EXPERT IN REMOVALS

Previous to the removal of Pauline Lane to Philadelphia for an operation to remove the cigarette lighter cap from her lung, The Constitution offered to pay the expenses of the Knoxville girl's trip to Atlanta, where specialists were ready to perform the delicate operation.

The offer was made by The Constitution in the interest of the prestige of southern medicine, which this paper believes to be on a par with any section of the country. All instruments necessary to perform the operation were available in Atlanta.

FASCISTS LOSE POWER IN AUSTRIAN SHAKE-UP of the cabinet precipitated a governmental crisis which threatened the vice chancellor's political career.

The disension was climaxed as result of Sunday's demonstrations by members of the freedom league and Heimwehr troops in which several were injured.

The issues at stake internally were fascism against democracy and internationally whether Austria will follow Italy if and when the fascist state quits the League of Nations.

Appointment of Schuschnigg was a decisive victory for democracy, but it was not known what stand Austria would take if Italy bolts the League, as Italy is virtual guarantor of Austria's independence and territorial integrity.

It was anticipated in official quarters that Austria in the future would emphasize more friendly relations with Germany and consult more often and freely with Great Britain and France, to some extent pulling away from Italian influence.

An official announcement, however, said the new government will not change Austria's internal or external policies.

Observers commented that Starhemberg's elimination from the government temporarily will end the active movement to have the Hapsburgs restored. On several occasions, Starhemberg promised that he favored restoration. Other central European countries, have said restoration would mean war.

MRS. GLORIA SPECKELS.

2D WIFE DIVORCES SUGAR ESTATE HEIR

Mrs. Speckels Wins Writ After Few Minutes With Judge

RENO, Nev., May 13.—(P)—Testifying behind the locked doors of District Judge Benjamin F. Currier's courtroom, pretty Mrs. Gloria Debevoise Speckels won speedy dissolution today of her marriage eight months ago to Adolph B. Speckels, heir to a California sugar fortune.

The young and socially prominent New York matron charged extreme cruelty in asking for the divorce decree, which was handed down by Judge Currier after a hearing which required only a few minutes. The decree was granted a few hours after suit was filed.

A property settlement agreement was effected by the couple May 11, 1936. They were married last September 6. Marital difficulties were reported often after their European honeymoon.

It was the second time Speckels had been divorced in Reno. His first wife, the former Lois Clarke De Ruyter Speckels, won a decree here May 17, 1935, and then married Frank C. Clinton, of San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Harrison told newspapermen he was not "wedded" to the figures on what he asked for treasury revenue estimates. He said he had merely submitted them as a working basis, and expected the treasury to report a schedule of that kind that would raise the necessary $620,000,000.

The committee chairman still expressed himself as optimistic over the prospects of getting a fairly early agreement on the revenue program. He forecast the committee would report a bill out to the senate "sometime next week."

Recommendations by Secretary Wallace for the imposition of $200,000,000 in new processing taxes meanwhile drew forth a statement from Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, who said that if the processing taxes were added to the bill he would fight them.

"It is about time that Secretary Wallace realized that the people in the cities suffer the most in a depression, and that the consumers in the cities have been bearing the burden of all farm relief to date," he said.

FLORIDA SHIP CANAL REVIVED BY ROBINSON

by a $5,000,000 allocation made from the $480,000,000 work-relief fund. This allotment was augmented with small allocations but since the original outlay, no sizeable provision for the project "as been made."

Robinson's resolution provided that President Roosevelt should be authorized to appoint a board of three members to be known as the "Florida Canal Board."

Members would be qualified engineers, in no manner connected with the project.

The canal board would review reports on the project with particular reference to whether such a canal would create "any consequential or irreparable disturbance of the ground water levels of the state of Florida."

It would be instructed to report to the President before June 20, 1936. Should the conclusions be favorable to continuance by the government of work on the canal, President Roosevelt would be authorized to make allotments for the fiscal year 1936-37 from relief or work-relief funds not to exceed $10,000,000.

This clause, however, was made contingent on the proviso that total estimated capital cost of the canal "shall not exceed $150,000,000."

Members of the board would receive $50 per day for each day of service, including "necessary expenses."

The Robinson resolution was the second indication that the Florida canal still may be a live issue.

Survey of Project.

Last month Secretary of War George H. Dern authorized district army engineers, supervised by Lieutenant Colonel Brehon Somervell, canal chief, to make a survey of the project. Dern himself visited the canal construction center at Ocala, Fla., last month.

The resolution by Robinson hinted that the administration may be considering this means of solving the dilemma of disposal of huge projects initiated under the work-relief fund, but which congress refused to recognize with supplementary allocations.

The fact that huge development was started without direct congressional sanction was the basic argument of Senator Arthur Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, who led the fight against the proposed $12,000,000 allocation in the senate this spring.

Vandenberg paired this point with the claims of south Florida that the canal might do irreparable damage to the ground water supply of the state.

Made Fight for Funds.

Duncan, aged Florida senator, made a determined fight both in committee and on the floor to write the appropriation into the War Department supply bill as a rider, but went down to defeat on the original vote and on a subsequent motion to reconsider.

The initial $5,000,000 allocation was approved by President Roosevelt on September 2, 1935. At the peak of work last fall approximately 5,000 men found employment on the project, but since that time, with allocations exhausted, the employment level has declined sharply.

TAX MEASURE HEADED FOR CERTAIN REVISION

overtime in figuring what the various proposals would raise. They were expected to report to the committee tomorrow.

Harrison's Plan.

One plan on which they were working, submitted by Chairman Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, of the finance committee, would impose a flat tax of 15 per cent on all corporate income, with a surtax ranging from 5 to 45 per cent on undistributed earnings above 30 per cent of the net income.

The house bill would eliminate the present flat corporations taxes and substitute taxes ranging up to 42.2 per cent on net incomes depending upon how much was withheld from distributions.

Both proposals—that passed by the house and the one under consideration by the finance committee—would make all corporation dividends subject to the normal income tax of 4 per cent.

Morgenstau's figures were submitted to the finance committee in executive session in response to a resolution by Senator Byrd, democrat, Virginia. Members of the committee were warned that under the law they could be put in jail if they disclosed the details of the secretary's testimony.

Would Have Cut Taxes.

Senator Byrd was authorized by the committee, however, to disclose that Morgenstau reported 600 corporations reported net incomes of $1,000,000 or more in 1934 and that 283 of them would have had their taxes cut at least 50 per cent under the house bill. He said the 283 included 138 which would have paid nothing.

Morgenstau was not asked to submit figures on how many corporations would have had comparable increases, but treasury experts estimated off-hand there would have been at least 50 per cent more than he reported on this later.

Byrd said Morgenstau's figures proved his contention "that many prosperous companies will evade taxes" under the house proposal.

"I am more convinced than ever that the bill is very much to the advantage of the strong company, and disastrous to the small company," he added.

The Virginian said he was not ready to commit himself on the compromise proposals for a flat tax on all corporate income with a surtax on undistributed profits.

Harrison told newspapermen he was not "wedded" to the figures on what he asked for treasury revenue estimates. He said he had merely submitted them as a working basis, and expected the treasury to report a schedule of that kind that would raise the necessary $620,000,000.

TECH HIGH SERGEANT RETIRED FROM SERVICE

Master Sergeant Frank Johnson, commandant of Tech High school for six years, was honored at a parade yesterday afternoon on his retirement from active service.

He was presented a large purple "T" and a certificate of distinguished military service at the ceremony. The R. O. T. C. units of Boys' High and Tech High schools took part in the review. Sergeant R. A. McCallister, recently transferred from Fort Benning, will succeed Sergeant Johnson at the opening of the next school term.

More than $38,200,000 was spent by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company in 1935 in taxes, wages and plant additions, improvements and replacements to meet the demands for high grade telephone service in the section it serves.

Most of the thirty-eight million dollars found its way back into the avenues of trade in the South.

To care for the 55,950 new telephones added and the eight per cent increase in the volume of traffic, the Company increased its personnel, expanded its plant and made a substantial improvement in the quality of its service.

way mark from Lakehurst early this morning and was expected to reach Frankfort around dawn tomorrow.

All day yesterday the huge craft sped through rain, fog and clouds. The weather matter little to the ship or those aboard. There was a general feeling of security. Friendships ripened and there were many gay parties in the smoking room.

Passengers, as on the westward cruise, reported the flight one of yet smoothness and astonishing comfort.

We proceeded up the Atlantic coast of the United States and off the Nova Scotia coast to the grand banks of Newfoundland, thence across the north Atlantic, speeding to completion of the first commercial flight across the north Atlantic.

There are 47 passengers, 55 crew members and a pay load of mail and cargo.

The cruise has been marked only by its absence of the usual discomforts of sea travel.

Many of the passengers remained at the portholes hour after hour, gazing at the white cloud banks and trying to spot steamers. Those who drink have kept the ship's bar busy. We have ample music from the piano and plenty of room for recreation.

NAVY READY TO BUILD BIG FLOATING DRY DOCK

$10,000,000 Project Would Strengthen Hawaiian Defense.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—With congressional action nearly completed on the peacetime navy appropriation bill, Admiral William H. Standley, acting secretary, said today the navy was ready to start immediate construction of a $10,000,000 floating dry dock as part of the Hawaiian island defense line.

He disclosed this as he appeared to testify before the senate foreign relations committee on the negotiations which led to the signing of the new London naval treaty now before the committee. The committee meeting was postponed because of the absence of several members.

Construction of the monster steel drydock of a new type and design superior to that of any other nation as a major project in increasing the navy's efficiency in the Pacific has been under discussion and consideration for 15 years. It would be located at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

"Plans for construction of the new drydock have been completed by the Bureau of Yards and Docks," Standley said, "and we will issue invitations for bids within the next few days."

The navy appropriation bill is now in conference between the senate and the house. As it passed the house, it called for expenditure of $531,070,000. The senate reduced this to $520,000,000.

The new drydock—a gigantic floating machine shop equipped to handle any ship the navy now has, or plans to build—will be 1,016 feet long, 116 feet wide and 75 feet from top to keel.

To handle battleships it would be able to submerge for docking to a maximum of 65 feet, which would necessitate dredging operations in Pearl harbor before the new dock could be floated into position.

Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy all have floating drydocks, navy officers said, but none including the big British dock at Singapore—a of the new type to be built for Pearl harbor.

FARM FINANCING BILL IS DEFEATED BY HOUSE

Labor, announcing the organization's executive council had gone on record against the bill "largely because of its inflationary nature."

With tempers frayed and party lines smashed, the skirmishing became so bitter that Byrns was rebuked openly by Representative Biederup, republican, Nebraska, for reading the communication because, he said, it aided "in a damnable poison being spread out in the nation."

Green also was assailed by Representative Rankin, democrat, Mississippi, for having the "impudence to come here and tell the congress of the United States how to vote for the farmers of the United States."

What Proposed.
Brought to the floor after administration whips were unsuccessful in keeping it pigeonholed in the rules committee, the bill would authorize issuance of bonds, secured by farm mortgages and drawing 1.12 per cent interest, to refinance farm debts over 47 years. Farmers would pay 1.12 per cent interest on loans.

The bonds would be issued by the Farm Credit Administration and sold to the public. But the bill says that it also "shall be the duty of the federal reserve and national banks to invest their available surplus and net profits, after the dividends are paid to their stockholders, in such farm loan bonds."

In case the bonds are not readily purchased, federal reserve notes up to $3,000,000,000 would have been issued.

Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas.

Portrait Presented to Hoke Smith Junior High School

A portrait of the late Hoke Smith, former United States senator and governor of Georgia, was presented to the Hoke Smith Junior High school by Marion Smith, prominent Atlanta attorney and son of the widely known Georgian, at exercises held in the school auditorium yesterday morning. a substitute bill by Chairman Jones, of the agriculture committee, offered an alternative bill, which like the Frazier-Lemke measure, was approved by the agriculture committee, would have authorized federal land banks to issue notes as do federal reserve banks. These would have been used in the refinancing farm debt at 2 per cent interest and would have been backed 60 per cent by farm paper and 40 per cent gold. It was ruled out of order.

Also ruled out of order was an amendment by Representative Lesinski, democrat, Michigan, which would have permitted city home owners to obtain the same rates in refinancing home indebtedness.

Green's letter declared labor would be vitally affected by a proposal to "print and circulate billions of currency."

"We know," it said, "that when inflation of the kind proposed in this bill is adopted, commodity prices rise and wages stand still."

In rebuttal, Representative Withrow, progressive, Wisconsin, read a letter from the head of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen asking passage.

GEORGIA DELEGATION
VOTES AGAINST BILL
WASHINGTON, May 13.—Because of its excessive inflationary provisions the entire Georgia delegation in the lower house cast their lot with administration forces today in voting against the Frazier-Lemke $3,000,000,000 farm mortgage bill which was defeated by a margin of 234 to 142.

Representative Braswell Deen, of Alma, made a brief speech opposing the bill after previously signing the petition, which brought the measure to the floor against the wishes of the house rules committee. In voting with his other Georgia colleagues against the bill Deen explained that in signing the petition for discharge of the committee he had done so with the reservation the bill would not command his support on the final vote unless amended.

JUDGE REBUKES LEE FOR WASTE OF TIME

an unsurmountable amount of detailed evidence.

These efforts brought the rebuke from Judge Barrett yesterday. He has permitted Lee to get before the jury, in his cross-examination, statements that should have been reserved for Lee's statement to the jury. The anomalous position of a defendant arguing his own case has caused Judge Barrett to be lenient.

Out of Stengel Lee elicited the admission that Stengel had been playing the stock market on his own hook, and not under the guidance of B. M. Bradley, even during Stengel's association with Bradley.

Convinced by Bradley.
Lee also had Stengel explain how he surrendered his job as a teacher at Georgia Tech to become identified with Bradley.

"Bradley convinced me he had contacts in the Street (Wall Street) and in the pit," said Stengel. "He convinced me he had access to the specialists' books. He could find out what orders were being placed and if the market declined, he was prepared to meet the situation. He explained thoroughly to my satisfaction he could do what he said he could do in the market. I asked him where I would come into the picture."

Bradley then offered Stengel several propositions and, as a result, Stengel was at work for Bradley within a month.

Lee's cross-examination of Stengel lasted through most of the morning hours of the session. After the noon recess, Harold Bromley, former confidential law stenographer for Lee, was placed on the stand.

Fervent activity in the offices of the American Bond & Share Corporation on Sunday night, March 7, 1935, was described by Bromley. The Securities Exchange Commission had invaded the offices on Saturday and had subpoenaed officials of the Bradley corporation to appear with their books and records before the grand jury on Monday morning.

"Bradley and Lee and six or seven of us employees were gathered down there Sunday night and under Lee's direction we moved out records," said Bromley. "We took files out of the cabinets—Lee picked them out—and we filled up pasteboard boxes with these records that Lee designated."

"We worked from 11 or 12 o'clock Sunday night until 1 or 2 o'clock Monday morning. We filled up seven or eight boxes. We were taking the papers and records at random, but Lee supervised us. After we had filled the boxes we took them to Lee's home about 3 a. m. and put them in his dining room. Then we sat around and had coffee."

"The next morning we went out to Lee's house and moved the boxes over to William A. Smith's house. We left them on Smith's back porch."

Lee's cross-examination of Bromley failed to change this story.

The trial will be resumed this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

Though Val had not been prepared for this abrupt reference to Hugh, she was not in the least troubled by it. But she told him, "A question like that can't be answered in a word. Robert. Come back tomorrow—or when you find it convenient." Then, as she held out her hand to him: "I may decide to go back with you—but if I do, it will be on the one condition that Aunt Mahala let her present will stand as it is. I've never wanted her money."

His face suddenly drained of color, Robert stepped out into the corridor and was still standing there, staring, when the door closed.

Leaving Kate and Bret, Hugh Malcolm had gone directly to Winifred's hotel apartment. An hour later as he stood, coat on arm, hat in hand, Winifred was lying face downward on the couch, her lovely head in the crook of her arm sobbing softly.

Hugh said, "Unless you had something to do with Leslie's death, the truth can't hurt you, Winifred. You didn't kill him. But you've lived a lie, for three years and somewhere in that lie may be the key to the murder. Buck up and take your medicine. Whether you realize it or not, I am still your best friend and when you need me, I'll be ready."

It was after 10 o'clock when Hugh said down with the district attorney in the latter's Long Island home. "I've come," Hugh said, "to give you what I consider an important bit of information. Winifred Leslie Crawford was married. I've just had a talk with his wife."

Kellogg stared. "You have?" "Yes—Winifred Sperry. They had a child, a boy. Two or three by now, I should say." He could see the district attorney was going back over the evidence to see where it fit in—it did fit in. "Poor devil. I can understand now why he was so devilishly jealous of her."

Kellogg nodded without thinking about what Hugh had said. "Where's the child now—did she tell you?" "I told her. On a wild guess. And she admitted it. He's in New Manchester, Connecticut. Living in a small apartment with a nurse and a governess."

"By the way," Kellogg said abruptly, "Gallishaw comes from New Manchester, doesn't he?" "You've got it," Hugh said. "That's the connection. He leaned forward. "Winifred says Bret has been looking after the youngster for three or four months, but she refuses to tell me why. Bret and Leslie had no love for each other, you know."

Kellogg tapped out his cigarette. "You've made a more important discovery than you realize, Hugh. We've been reckoning Gallishaw's alibi and we've found a weak spot in it. We must find out where he is."

Hugh nodded. "He doesn't seem to have a logical place in the puzzle, does he? I couldn't make anything of it. He sat silent for a time, thinking: "I don't want to appear to be putting Bret on the spot. Walter, but it's a matter of self-preservation with me. . . . Bret gave his hand away this evening at Kate Holister's apartment. Val Clarke happened to say she had seen him in New Manchester on Armistice Day and that he had a small boy in the car with him. He denied flatly that she had seen him—said he hadn't had a child in his car in years. Then, for no reason at all except that Bret seemed to be rather uneasy, I happened to think about the boy's picture Leslie was looking at when Val saw him in his dressing room the night he was killed. And that called up the report that was going around a few years ago to the effect that Leslie and Winifred were secretly married. I'm not much of a detective, but, after all, I couldn't very well miss the connection and I decided to try a bluff on Winifred."

"And if worked," Kellogg said, smiling. "Good boy." He instantly regretted that, seeing in Hugh's eyes what for the moment he had forgotten. "Miss Sperry," he said, irrelevantly, "is a very charming woman."

Hugh didn't say anything.

Across the little table in a corner of the glassed-in roof, Bret Gallishaw looked at Kate and asked himself the question that had been troubling him in thinking of her as the girl he once thought he loved? He did, always, when he was away from her. Then he came home and he found her cold and disillusioned and cynical. Perhaps she felt the same way about him. He had, he confessed to himself, given her ample reason to hate him. The curious thing was that she did not hate him, that she was as unhappy as he was when they were not together. The illusion that had held them years ago, that danced around their table, heads close together, talking softly, Kate's eyes followed them.

A young couple, not at all aware of this, danced around their table, heads close together, talking softly. Kate's eyes followed them.

"Envious?" Bret asked. "She said, smiling, 'Who wouldn't be?' And then she looked at him with an old hope in her eyes. 'Bret, we can't go on like this forever and ever. In spite of all that's happened, we're still in love and we will be to the end of time. Why can't your wife see that? A divorce—'

Bret said, "I'm glad you brought it up, Kate. There's something I wanted to tell you, but I didn't just know how to go about it. . . ."

The spark of hope burst into flame. She leaned forward, waiting.

"You've heard me say a good many times we ought to accept the inevitable and I'm saying it again. But this time I mean it. It's the only decent thing to do. Evelyn and I are sailing for France next week. We're going to Paris to live."

Kate sat rigid, staring at him. For the second time she had bared her heart to him—and for the second time he had turned from her. And this was final. Already she could feel the loneliness closing about her. . . . Suddenly she told herself she hated him and out of that revulsion of feeling came a question:

"Why did you lie to Val about the little boy in your car, Bret?"

His lips became a thin line. "You seem very positive," he said. "Wouldn't it be a good idea to ask me if I lied?"

She shook her head. "It was too obvious to mistake—the way you looked at Val when she mentioned it. Bret, why was it so important that we not know that on Armistice Day you had a small boy in your car watching the parade?"

"Because," he said, angrily, "I still have some regard for the truth. I was not in New Manchester on Armistice Day and as I said before, I haven't had a child in my car for years. What possible difference it could make to you or anyone if this was not the case, I can't imagine."

Kate shrugged. "Very well, then. I owe you an apology. Forgive me." But her voice was cold.

He nodded gravely, stared at her for a moment, then dropped his eyes to his plate. . . .

Hugh returned to his apartment shortly after 10 o'clock. He snapped on the living room lights, and was going to the bedroom when he saw Val reclining on the couch, and open magazine held above her head, her face at the moment turned toward him, smiling.

"Not at all," Val said, pulling her hat on. "How are you, Miss Sperry?"

Winifred said dryly, "Very well, thank you. . . ."

There was a little silence. Hugh said then, "Keep your things on, Winifred. We'll talk Val home."

"Why did you lie to Val about the little boy in your car, Bret?"

His lips became a thin line. "You seem very positive," he said. "Wouldn't it be a good idea to ask me if I lied?"

She shook her head. "It was too obvious to mistake—the way you looked at Val when she mentioned it. Bret, why was it so important that we not know that on Armistice Day you had a small boy in your car watching the parade?"

"Because," he said, angrily, "I still have some regard for the truth. I was not in New Manchester on Armistice Day and as I said before, I haven't had a child in my car for years. What possible difference it could make to you or anyone if this was not the case, I can't imagine."

Kate shrugged. "Very well, then. I owe you an apology. Forgive me." But her voice was cold.

He nodded gravely, stared at her for a moment, then dropped his eyes to his plate. . . .

Hugh returned to his apartment shortly after 10 o'clock. He snapped on the living room lights, and was going to the bedroom when he saw Val reclining on the couch, and open magazine held above her head, her face at the moment turned toward him, smiling.

"Not at all," Val said, pulling her hat on. "How are you, Miss Sperry?"

Winifred said dryly, "Very well, thank you. . . ."

There was a little silence. Hugh said then, "Keep your things on, Winifred. We'll talk Val home."

Continued Tomorrow.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farber, Ph.D.

MOST "CLASSICAL" MUSIC IS NOT CLASSICAL

Douglas Moore points out in his delightful book, "Listening to Music," the fact that most serious music is really not classical. The word "classical" which is applied to all music not of the ballad type or dance tempo, is erroneous. Haydn and Mozart composed classical music. The word was standardized and fixed in form; while Schumann and Wagner did not compose classical music, but romantic music. Beethoven paved the way to the transition from the classical to the romantic music, and most composers after him were of the romantic age. Of late, the impressionistic and modernistic forms have appeared in music.

During the American Civil War Texas was a member of the Confederacy—its explaining one of the six flags Texas has had.

The capital city of Texas is Austin, but several other places have had the honor in times gone by. In days of Spanish rule, San Antonio was the home of the governor for a long period. During the Republic of Texas, the capital was moved from one little town to another. For three years it was located at Houston, a village which had been newly started, and which later was to grow into the large city of today. Recently it stayed at a hotel in Houston where stands where once was a capital building.

The early capital buildings were made of wood. A log cabin served as a capital at the town of Waterloo during certain years of the republic. The name of this town was changed to Austin, in honor of Stephen F. Austin.

Larger buildings at Austin were destroyed by fire, and then the present capital was built from granite taken from Granite Mountain. This building was paid for with three million acres of public land.

Today Texas has a population of more than 6,000,000 persons. Its area is larger than that of France or Germany—it contains more square miles than any country in Europe except Russia.

GEORGIA CROPS SUFFER FROM SEVERE DROUGHT

Rain Is Needed in All Sections of State, Farm Agents Report.

By the Associated Press.

Georgia farmers looked hopefully toward the skies yesterday for relief from a drought which threatened the cotton and vegetable crops.

A heavy shower fell in Thomasville, breaking a three weeks' dry spell. The weather forecast for more rain and cooler weather was looked upon favorably by the farmers.

Cotton, beans, cabbage, onions, squash and other truck were reported in bad condition due to lack of moisture. Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder called the prospect "gloomy."

The shortage naturally has helped boost prices, but we need rain badly," Linder said. Farm agents throughout the state expressed similar opinions.

R. R. McNamara, manager of the Savannah farmers' wholesale market, said the vegetable crop in that section was cut 25 per cent. The city passed its thirty-third dry day.

A third of the cotton around Macon has failed to come up, County Agent D. F. Bruce reported. Another third has a poor stand. Much replanting was in progress. Truck crops were spotted, farmers near Valdosta complained of dry weather.

A 60-per cent reduction in the vegetable yield near Columbus was reported by Felix Jenkins, Muscogee county farm agent. He said the cotton stand was 40 per cent normal.

Brunswick, where floods recently inundated hundreds of acres, was surrounded by dry fields. Serious damage to crops was imminent, farmers reported, unless rain falls.

About half the vegetables normally marketed were held in Albany due to dry weather. About 12 per cent of the cotton has been plowed under or replanted, County Agent A. E. Gibson said. Most of the growing acreage has a poor stand.

STATE PHARMACISTS OPEN MACON SESSION

Members Are Urged To Support Fair Trade Legislation.

MACON, Ga., May 13.—(AP)—Members of the Georgia Pharmaceutical Association were urged today to support fair trade legislation and to treat pharmacy as a profession, in the opening session of a two-day convention here.

In his opening address, R. Lee Olive, Augusta, president, told the pharmacists that it is "your duty to use your influence in your community to get your relatives, friends and other retailers interested in working for the passage of fair trade legislation."

The other principal speaker of the morning, Anton Hogstad Jr., of New Jersey, declared that the atmosphere of a drugstore is just the reverse of what it should be, because it is dominated "by an air of commercialism."

The convention was called to order by Mr. Olive with approximately 1,000 persons, including druggists, traveling men and members of the women's auxiliary, in attendance.

At noon a luncheon was served at a floor show was presented. This afternoon a separate session of the auxiliary was held. Mrs. W. T. Edmunds, state president, presiding, George Gunlach, of Cincinnati, Ohio, spoke before the men's session.

The procession was led by the uniformed band of the Shriners.

Present to represent the grand encampment of the United States was the Rev. H. H. Butler, D. D., of St. Augustine, representing George W. Widener, of Milwaukee, national grand master.

GEORGIA PEACH CROP SET AT 8,965 CARS

Early Season and Good Prices Seen by Macon Specialist.

MACON, Ga., May 13.—(AP)—Georgia's 1938 peach crop was estimated at 8,965 cars—about 400 more than last season—by the Georgia Peach Growers' Exchange today. W. C. Bewley, general manager of the exchange, announced the figure.

The exchange made no estimate of the probable worth of the crop but the Macon Evening News said growers should receive more than $5,000,000.

Marketing prospects were reported excellent. Bewley said, "it appears quite certain that the several varieties in each section of the peach belt will mature in proper order, making it quite improbable that there will be any abnormal overlapping of varieties."

This year Georgia peach growers generally have spent more money and made a more determined effort to produce a crop of good quality peaches than at any time in recent years. The orchards generally are now in excellent condition and with anything like favorable weather conditions during the next few weeks the crop as a whole should be above the average in size and quality.

A cold winter destroyed the curculio, an orchard pest.

Growers say the season will be ahead of normal. Last year the Mayflowers and Mountain Rose varieties began moving in carload lots May 17. First carload shipments this year are expected to be moved in a few days. The exchange estimate by varieties follows:

Mayflowers and Mountain Rose 65 cars; Unoceda 286; miscellaneous varieties 121; Early Rose 770; Carman 75; Hiley 1,985; Georgia Belle 300; Elberta and miscellaneous late 5,385.

COOPER IS SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR MURDER

For the fourth time in two years, Charles Cooper, white youth, yesterday heard the sentence of death in the electric chair pronounced upon him in Fulton superior court.

Judge G. H. Howard, who had sentenced Cooper twice previously, set the date of execution on May 20.

Cooper was found guilty in 1934 of murdering James T. Chappell in a West Peachtree street holdup. He was granted a new trial and again convicted. He appealed to the supreme court, which upheld the lower courts. A plea for a pardon or parole was made to the prison commission and Governor Talmadge granted a 30-day respite.

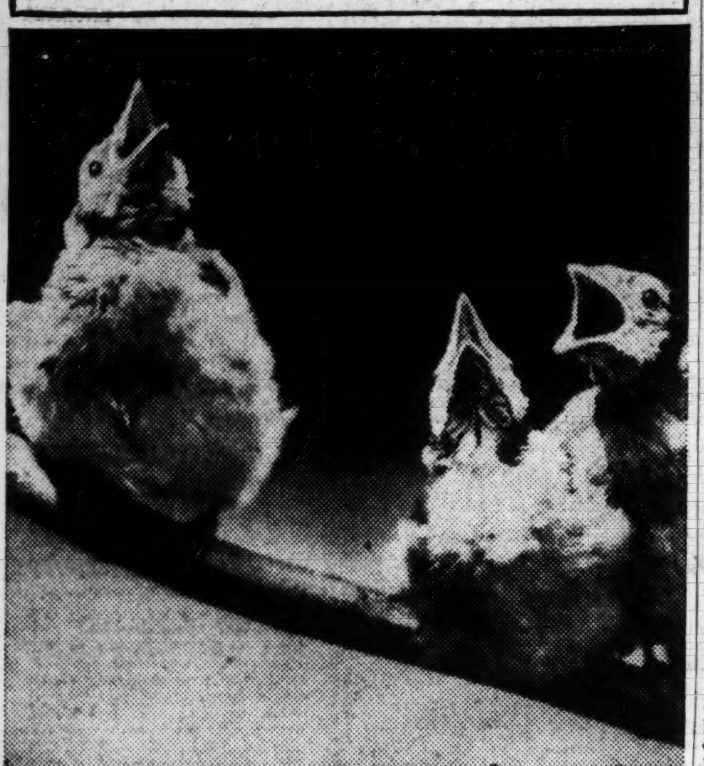

The prison board still has the plea under consideration but the respite ended, it was mandatory for Judge Howard to resentence Cooper to death.

Cooper's attorney is Len Guillebeau, who said yesterday that he will request executive clemency for his client.

Cooper has consistently claimed he was in Miami, Fla., the date of the murder of Chappell.

JUDGE'S SON ELECTED.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 13.—(AP)—John D. Martin Jr., 25-year-old attorney, was elected chairman of the Shelby county democratic executive committee at its organization meeting today.

GULFShriners Prepare for Pilgrimage Across Hot Sands

Yaarab Shriners journeyed to Grant park yesterday for the sake of experience in getting over the humps on a camel's back, preparatory to their pilgrimage across the hot sands to Mecca at the meeting of the imperial council in Seattle, next July. Gingerly seated astride the camel is Potentate Roy S. Mather, of Yaarab Shrine, in his capacity as drum major of the Oriental band. Clutching the scimitar with more or less determination is Noble W. N. Daniel, imperial cowpuncher, while others in the picture, left to right, are Noble Mike Benton, Recorder Frank A. Cundell, Past Potentate Hiram R. Romans, High Priest and Prophet William J. Draper, Chief Rabbi Francis E. Van der Veer and Oriental Guide Wilbur F. Glenn. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

Yaarab Nobles, Facing Pilgrimage To Seattle, Practice on Mrs. Camel

Faced with a pilgrimage to Seattle, where the imperial council of the Shrine is to be held next July, a group of nobles of Yaarab Shrine, yesterday called on Mrs. Two-Hump, the well-known camel of Grant park, and practiced riding between the humps and otherwise accustom themselves to desert transportation, preparatory to the trip over the hot sands they are to take at Seattle.

The visit to Grant park's oriental delegate was decided during a meeting called yesterday by Potentate Roy S. Mather to discuss plans for the pilgrimage to the Seattle meeting and to perfect arrangements for a ceremonial session that Yaarab temple is to hold next week.

Mrs. Camel at first hesitated about posing with the Shriners, but when they informed her they had not only walked one mile, but driven several miles for a camel, her feminine vanity was touched and she responded most graciously. She even allowed Potentate Mather, in his capacity as drum major of the Oriental band, to sit, momentarily, between her humps, though it was notable that Potentate

Mather took his seat in gingerly and delicate fashion.

Plans for the ceremonial session, to be held at the Shrine mosque next Wednesday, included a dinner to out-of-town nobles at 6 o'clock, at which Potentate Mather and the reception committee will be hosts. At 7:30 o'clock a concert will be given in the Egyptian room by the Million Dollar band, under direction of Noble A. J. Garing, followed with the first section of the ceremonial at 8 o'clock and the second section at 9 o'clock. At the latter hour the degree team, under direction of Noble Virgil Shepard, will conduct the nobles across the hot sands to Mecca.

Nobles are requested to wear the fez and admission will be on presentation of the 1936 Shrine card.

LEWIS CLAIMS VICTORY FOR IRON, STEEL UNIONJurisdiction Will Be Retained by American Federation Head.

CANONSBURG, Pa., May 13.—(UP)—A major victory in his long fight with the American Federation of Labor—one that in time may bring about collapse of craft unionism—was claimed today by John L. Lewis when the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers voted to unionize the giant steel industry along industrial lines.

The 61st annual convention of the amalgamated wrapped nearly three weeks on the question of whether to adopt or reject the Lewis plan for reorganizing the far-flung union, sent a committee to Washington to confer with President William Green, of the A. F. of L., and then adopted the plan by a vote of 53 to 31.

While adopting the plan for a membership drive to be predicated along the lines proposed in the first instance by the United Mine Workers of America, the convention made one important reservation in its qualified acceptance.

Rather than turn over control and direction of the membership drive to the committee for industrial organization which Lewis dominates, the amalgamated set forth its own plans for the drive.

Offer Ignored.

Lewis had made C. I. O. an offer of $500,000 to help finance the reorganization, and by ignoring the offer, the steel union reserved direction of its membership campaign for A. F. of L. and its own leaders.

The resolution delegates passed made a strong bid for the friendship of Green and the federation. Seeking general support of the newly voted reorganization drive, the convention solicited contributions, trained organizers and, where possible, donations of funds from other affiliated unions.

The section of the resolution seeking to transform amalgamated into an industrial union read: "Any and all rights or claims of jurisdiction in the steel industry be permanently waived by any and all interested organizations in favor of the amalgamated association."

That was interpreted to mean that the machinists' union as well as all others in the nation's steel plants, would be merged with the amalgamated into one "great organization," including all workers from the highest skilled laborer down to the man who pushes the wheelbarrow.

Michael F. Tighe, again amalgamated president, as well as Green, had long sought to hold the steel industry as a craft group and for months had felt invade the so-called "younger blood" leaders pressing for industrialization of all unions.

Other Drives Planned.

Drives similar to the one concluded within the amalgamated are planned for other of the nation's industries by C. I. O.

Green was so desirous of maintaining the amalgamated's craft union status that following the conference in Washington last week he proffered, in match Lewis' offer, the services of 40 expert organizers to aid in a membership drive. He insisted, however, that the A. F. of L. must have complete charge of the campaign.

Today's resolution also said that those federation affiliates which would waive rights in the industry, and contribute funds and organizers, would be asked to sit on a joint committee to direct the drive in conformity with the amalgamated's charter rights.

While the resolution was a compromise between Lewis and Green, it fundamentally was a Lewis victory because it did call for the waiving of craft union claims of jurisdiction, the major point of Lewis' proposal.

The last act of the convention was the selection of Chicago as next year's convention city.

New officers will be elected by mail ballots next October.

JEWS CELEBRATE 'VICTORY' TONIGHT

Dr. Goldstein To Speak at Meeting Honoring Success of Drive.

Workers and contributors in the successful Jewish welfare fund campaign, held here last month, will stage a victory meeting at 8 o'clock tonight, at the Jewish Progressive Club, 402 Pryor street, S. W., with Dr. Israel Goldstein, of New York, president of the Jewish National Fund, as principal speaker.

With Atlantans of all faiths contributing, the campaign for non-local Jewish charities went well over the $50,000 goal. Success of the drive means that a permanent organization will be established here to handle in annual campaign appeals for Jewish charities throughout this country and abroad, it was said.

"Our meeting Thursday evening has been arranged as a demonstration of appreciation to the hundreds of Atlantans who contributed so generously to air oppressed Jewry throughout the world," said Harold Hirsch, who headed the drive and who will preside at the victory meeting. "We urgently invite workers and contributors in the campaign, and all others interested, to attend Thursday's meeting and learn what is to be done with the money raised."

Mr. Hirsch pointed out that the distinguished rabbi carries a long list of national and international honors. He has played an important role in furthering the efforts of Jewish and Christian leaders to promote greater tolerance and understanding in this country.

Attractive New Colonial Home Houses Popular Atlanta Couple

By Sally Forth.

ONE of the most charming new homesteads that Sally has had the pleasure of seeing is that of Charlie and Elizabeth Allen Trout, which nestles quite becomingly upon the top of a sloping hill on Martina drive. The home is built in the white colonial style, and has a charming white chimney going right up the center of the front. Surrounding the lawn is a quaint fieldstone wall, and a cool inclosed porch at the side seems most inviting.

Elizabeth has seen to it that the inside of the new home is as attractive as the outside, and the furnishings are colorfully and tastefully planned. The living room carries out the color scheme of gray green and antique white, the draperies being of an off-white moire, with the lamps and coffee table in the same shade. The walls are of a soft shade of green, as are the Venetian blinds, which are held with antique white tape, and the living room carpet is of gray green broadloom. An interesting feature of the parlor is the pink marble clock and matching marble urns which adorn the mantel and were given Charlie and Elizabeth by the former's aunt, Mrs. Jim Dodd.

The dining room is arranged similar to the living room and carries out the same color scheme, with matching draperies and walls. The library or den, as Charlie calls it, is furnished for comfort, but results in creating a charming air. It is furnished in brown and yellow, a plaid studio couch in these colors, a mahogany bookcase, and a mahogany desk with morocco leather top, lending a peaceful and picturesque atmosphere to the room. The bedroom carries out the early American motif with maple furniture, and lamps and draperies in yellow and green.

In order to brighten the monotony of housework, the kitchen has been arranged in spectacu-

She carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies.

After a visit with the bride's family the young couple left for Wilmore, Ky., where they are both members of the class of 1938 at Ashbury College. They will return to Atlanta sometime in June.

Roosevelt Praises Mission of Libraries. American Library Association in Annual Conference at Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., May 13.—(AP)—A message from President Roosevelt in praise of public libraries was read today at an international radio broadcast in which Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes spoke from Washington and Earnest A. Savage, president of the British Library Association, from Edinburgh, Scotland.

The Roosevelt message was read by John Stewart Bryan, president of the Richmond library board, who was toastmaster at a "friends of the library" luncheon sponsor by the American Library Association, in conference here.

Termining the free public library "distinctly an American contribution to civilization," the President said, "I believe in the organization which stands for all library interests in the United States and Canada."

"Librarians must assume new responsibilities," he said, "because intelligent understanding of social, economic and political questions by the people is to my mind essential to the maintenance of democracy as we in the United States regard it."

The luncheon program followed a morning session in which Ralph Munn, director of the Carnegie library at Pittsburgh, told the librarians that they had lowered their standards by trying to serve a large part of the population that demands only recreational reading.

My Day
By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Tuesday.—I got in pretty late last night, but the City Club dinner in Albany was very pleasant in that I saw many old friends. The trip down was very enjoyable.

The world is small. Soon after we started one lady came to me reminding me that I had known her in Syracuse. A little later another lady came to me saying that her husband had been brought up in Massena, N. Y., and knew Miss Cook very well.

We had a pleasant little chat about that part of the state, which I think very lovely. Because of my visits there with Miss Cook's father, who was a very remarkable old man, I shall always enjoy any possible contact with that neighborhood.

This morning I had breakfast out on the porch, which is at the back of my little apartment, and a joy now that spring has come. You can almost feel that you are in the country! Later I started off to do some shopping for myself and for others, calling on the way at my son's house to see his two children, Sarah and Kate.

My son and his wife are on their way from Europe and will land very shortly. My own recollections are that I used to worry more the last few days before I arrived home for fear that something would happen the last minute, and so I think a radio saying that both children are in good health will be very welcome.

I lunched at First Houses at Avenue A and Third street, a very different spot from the opening day. It seems with life and such healthy, happy-looking children. Back to 331 Madison avenue for a few minutes to meet Mrs. Williams, who is interested in a new type of program for nursery schools.

Spent quite a while at the exhibition at the Todhunter school this afternoon, where my small granddaughter showed me around with particular pride. Then took her and her small brother to call on my godmother, Mrs. Henry Parish Jr., and left them at home on my way down town.

Tonight Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. and I are dining together and going to the theater. Thus ends a busy but pleasant day. (Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution)

NEW TERM IS SEEN FOR LILIENTHAL F.D.R. FACES CAMPAIGN IN 'PINK' OF CONDITION

Norris Says Tennessee Valley Leader May Succeed Self.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, author of the Tennessee Valley act, forecast today that David E. Lilienthal, whose appointment as director of the Authority expires next Monday, would be reappointed.

One of the three original directors of TVA, Lilienthal formerly was with the Wisconsin Public Service Commission.

Reports have been published that Norris himself would succeed to Lilienthal's post. The Nebraska senator has been considering retirement from the senate at the end of his present term.

But questioned today about the prospective vacancy and the likely successor to Lilienthal, Norris said: "I think Lilienthal will be appointed."

Norris conferred with President Roosevelt yesterday.

FLORIDAN ARRESTED IN SLAYING OF MATE

FORT MYERS, Fla., May 13.—(AP)—A coroner's jury today recommended that Roy Paul Barnes, beauty shop operator, be held for first-degree murder as a result of the fatal shooting of his wife, Jo Nell, at their home here about midnight.

Constable Dr. M. Ramsey, who arrested Barnes, testified the man said: "Yes, by God, I shot her because I was tired of having her fuss at me."

Roy Paul Jr., their 17-year-old son, told of hearing two shots which awakened him and rushing into the next room to find his mother on the floor and his father standing over her with a pistol in his hand.

Cares of Office Fail To Leave Mark on Chief Executive.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(UP)—Buoyant, good health is President Roosevelt's as he prepares for an active political campaign which he hopes will place him in the White House for another four years.

White House attaches and the President's personal physician, Dr. Ross T. McIntyre, described Mr. Roosevelt's physical and nervous condition today as "most excellent."

Cares of the nation's most exacting office have failed to leave their mark on the chief executive. Comparison of the President of today with photographs taken when he entered the White House more than three years ago reveal only a few more grey hairs, a few more lines in the face.

The infectious, cheerful grin remains. There still is the characteristic backward toss of the head when the President laughs or makes a particularly telling point in a speech or press conference.

Hot weather, of which Washington has more than its share, leaves the President comparatively unmoved. He continues his daily exercises as a matter of routine. Almost every day he manages to find time for a swim in the White House pool.

"He's fine," said Dr. McIntyre, the White House physician who supervises the President's exercise and, to some extent, his diet.

"He hasn't been in better physical, mental and nervous condition since he came to the White House."

INOCULATION OF DOGS, REGISTRATION URGED

With eight Atlantans reporting dog bites yesterday, W. H. Edwards Jr., city sanitary engineer, urged citizens to register their dogs and have them inoculated against rabies.

It is estimated that 6,000 dogs have not been registered. Only 2,000 dogs have their names on the registration books so far this year, though in 1935 the list of names totaled 8,000.

Owners may obtain city tags from any dog and cat hospital at which their animal is inoculated, or they may buy them from the dog wogan or at the city clerk's office.

Inoculation is necessary once each year. If dogs are inoculated within 12 months, a certificate from the veterinarian is all that is required in buying tags from the city clerk.

LOSE FAT THE EASY WAY

Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.

Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn up coal without forming "clinkers." If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.

Doctors correct this condition by feeding this little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.

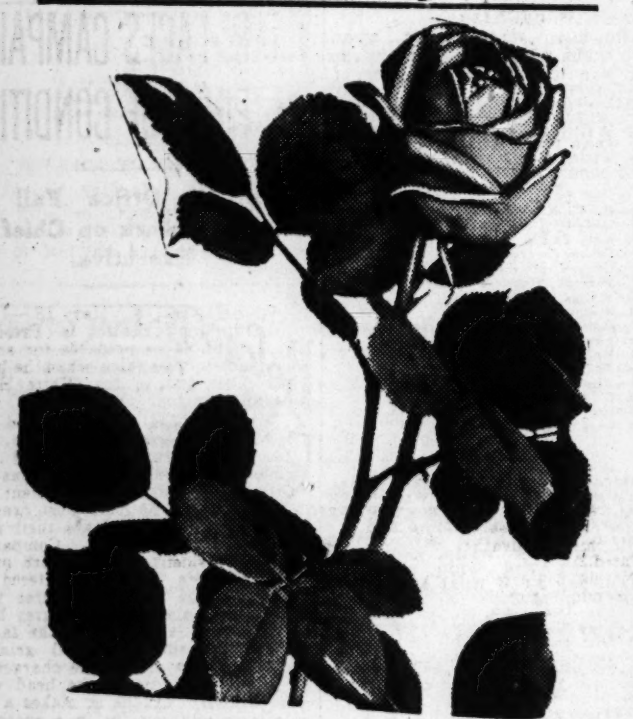

So don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your drugist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat.

"YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

GAIN IN THE RIGHT PLACES.

Pounds invariably come as a surprise, whether you are trying to gain weight or hoping to lose it. You may put on weight in the wrong places, months trying to collect a curve or two, and then one fine morning you wake up to the fact that you have taken on weight in the wrong places. That's what happens when a weight-gainer neglects her exercise—and let it be a lesson to you!

On a weight-gaining program, you must exercise against an accumulation of pounds about the waistline, hips and abdomen. Without exercise there is no guarantee of an even distribution of fat-earned new weight. Fat tends to settle in the areas of low muscular activity, which makes specific exercise a necessity to prevent gaining just "in spots."

The waistline, being susceptible to adipose tissue, may give you the first indication of stored calories. You probably improve your health and figure by taking on a moderate amount of weight in this area. However, if you allow too much of the new weight to settle here, in due time an annoying roll will appear between the waist and the hips. Stretching exercises are ideal for the weight-gainer, as they relieve tension and may be performed with a minimum of effort.

When the underweight starts to add curves, she is more than likely to take on that old problem of the feminine world—hips! Exercise is the only measure which can prevent a gain in the hips, and hip exercises should be done daily. Your plan should include walking as well as the specific exercises which best meet your needs. If exercises are tiring, select those which may be taken while lying down and in as relaxed a position as possible. There are a number of exercises of this kind described in the leaflet, "Hips, Hips Away!"

One of the chief objectives of a weight-gaining diet is to increase the size of the stomach, to improve the appetite and provide greater food capacity. However, the abdominal muscles are little used, and the additional weight is likely to settle into a tumour, unless these muscles are strengthened.

A weight-gainer with this experience asks if she should counteract this tendency by dieting. The answer is, no. The remedy diminishes an unmanageable appetite by decreasing food capacity in this way, but the weight-gainer must develop muscular control. Under weights usually have a fairly straight front line because they get so little food. In gaining, the front line is maintained by strengthening the abdominal muscles, which is far better for both the health and the figure. Begin with the first two exercises described in the leaflet, "Abdominal Exercises."

Watch your distribution of new weight, gainers, for curves add nothing to your appearance unless you gain them in the right spots.

Suggested Weight-Gaining Menu.

Breakfast—Fresh strawberries on whole grain cereal, milk and cream. Poached egg on toast, beverage.

Lunch—Cream chowder, stuffed celery, (cream cheese) health salad, roll, butter, tea.

Dinner—Roast beef, creamed new potatoes, peas, stewed tomatoes, bread, butter, apricot pie.

Milk before retiring.

You're thin.

Friendly Counsel

Dear Miss Chatfield:

Do the girls really believe that clothes make the man? Should a fellow be ashamed to appear on the streets in his overalls if they are his work uniform? I have been turned down by girls as often as they found out I wore overalls and couldn't appear dressed up every time I appeared on the streets. Are there any girls who are willing to be seen talking to a fellow who wears his working clothes?

ONE IN A DOZ.

Answer: All of your questions can be answered with a little story about a man who always considered himself a "white-collar man," though he, in fact, wore the overalls of a union when at his work. With the exception of grease-stained finger nails no one who saw him would ever guess that he did manual labor. On the days when his lunch hour time was short he took a box lunch from the shop because he was unwilling to appear on the street, or at his boarding house, unless he wore well pressed clothes (he pressed himself), clean linen and shining shoes. No matter what trouble it necessitated, he always changed his clothes when he went out on the street. The girls were crazy about him and one of the things that attracted them to him was his uniform in his personal appearance, it was not vanity, mind you, that prompted him to take such pains—it was an inborn pride that ran a golden thread through his whole character.

Of course there is no disgrace attached to overalls. Clothes do not make the man. But clothes indicate what sort of man he is. There are plenty of girls who are not ashamed to be seen talking to a man who wears his working clothes, but every one of them had rather be seen talking to a man who wore a well pressed suit, clean collar and shirt and shining shoes. If you ask her why this is, she will tell you the reason is that under her attitude. But I can tell you: A girl likes to look up to the boy, admire him and believe that he is going to get on in the world. Self-respect (which invites others to respect him), dignity and pride manifest themselves in good appearance and good manners. Pretty good indications that he is on his way. These may not touch his honesty, his integrity and his industry, which are of prime importance; but they are the trimmings on the garment of character that appeal to the girls.

The average little boy won't brush his hair, wash his ears or "neaten up" in any way until he is well aware that there is an opposite sex. Then his mother doesn't have to say another word to him about bathing and dressing. Instinctively he knows he should be clean, slick and hair down like the cat had licked it. He even brushes his teeth. His masculine pride is awakened and he wants to present the best appearance he can. Instinctively he knows that this is the first step toward winning their approval. Sometimes when he gets older he loses sight of this fact, becomes careless and indifferent toward the front he puts up. It's a bad sign. As the girls grow up they get more and more concerned with a man's good appearance because they know it is a cue to his self-esteem and a cue to the esteem in which others hold him.

Below are planetary indications, according to the rules of astrology, of which may apply to your forecast. Every day these interesting interpretations.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

When I was quite young I was married to a man who began to mistreat me after a year's time. I soon discovered that he had a weakness for women. Later it came to me that he had a sweetheart who had borne him two children while I was married to him. Soon after this revelation he moved to another state. This woman and her two children followed right away and here they are today. We have three children, a son and two daughters. I am in position to work and soon three children will be earning. My husband has asked for a divorce. Should I give it to him?

Answer: Legally, sentimentally, you are entitled to do just what pleases you under these circumstances. And I should think that having endured such humiliation, all these years, at the hands of a heartless and conscienceless man, you would feel immeasurably relieved to be rid of him forever and the sooner the better.

His example to the children is as dangerous to their moral character as snakes venom would be to their bodies. Even if he were rich enough to support them in luxury, of course he isn't, they would be far better off separate from him, living on their meagre earnings in the midst of decent surroundings.

"Let Your Stars Guide You"

"BIRTH" GRANT.
B. M. Grant Jr., Atlanta's own "Bitty," winner of the southern tennis tournament for six times, champion of the south, national clay court champion three times, winner last year to an invitation tournament of the highest ranking players in the country, and now off to more and higher honors, was born on December 25, under the Zodiacal sign Capricorn. Capricorn is the sign of intellectuality, self-reliance, practicality, industry.

In this chart Saturn is ascending and well aspected. This is a fortunate sign, for no matter how much one may be handicapped at the start of life, ultimate success is assured through the patience, self-control and restraint of Saturn. The Saturn-Mars position gives a powerful character position, the tempering of the hot and fiery Mars with the restraining Saturn. Saturn-Neptune gives powers of concentration, subtleness, tenacity, with physical and mental strength. The line of Saturn in the chart is strengthened for good.

The Sun's position endows him with an unusual individuality and the ability to receive high honors and great riches. More luck to "Bitty."

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

A great many players adopt a technique as a declarer that is comparable to one used by the contractor. They bury their faces in their own cards, lifting their heads only to peer at the dummy. They are either deathly tired of their opponents or, perhaps, feel that nothing can be gained by watching the cards they play.

This is exactly opposite to the technique used by experts. An expert studies his own hand and dummy thoroughly and, having fixed the cards at least roughly in his mind, watches for the defenders' follow-up cards and discards as keenly as though each were a separate clue to a murder mystery. The declarer in today's hand was the ostrich type.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—(P)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 11.56 cents a pound.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling 6 points higher, at 12.15.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—(P)

The cotton market showed little or no improvement today as far as the volume of trading was concerned. Operators appeared to be awaiting developments at Washington and the dispatching activity in the sales of loan cotton also helped to quiet the market.

While price fluctuations were rather narrow the general trend was somewhat firmer owing to a rather bullish weekly weather and crop summary issued by the government during the morning.

This caused an advance of 4 to 6 points over the opening and was fairly well maintained in the afternoon trading. The market finally closed steady with prices showing net gains for the day of 2 to 6 points.

Liverpool cables came in about as blue and opening trades showed gains of 1 point on distant months and a decline of 2 points on near months. After ruling dull for a time with long intervals between trades prices improved when the weekly weather and crop summary showed that considerable cotton remained to be planted in the western belt and that the price was doing poorly in the eastern belt owing to dry soil making considerable replanting necessary.

This bullish report started some trading and shorts covering prices advanced to 11.20 for July, 4 points up from the early low while October and December both advanced to 10.30, up 6 points from the early low. Advice from the spot markets indicated a more moderate demand from the mill and freight brokers reported but little demand for export.

The market ruled rather steady during the afternoon trading with prices holding at or near the highs of the morning. There was little hedge selling, but some picture and merchant bills was reported. Trading remained light to the close, but prices were well maintained at the best of the day.

Port receipts for the day were 4,707, for the season 1,731,581; last season 4,280,953; 5,275,423; last season 4,031,929. Port stocks 1,746,200, last year 1,844,106. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 43,345, last year 57,322. Spot sales at southern markets 10,434, last year 8,847.

COTTON STRAIGHT.

NEW YORK, May 13.—(P)—Aside from modest activity and steadiness in early new crop deliveries, there was little change in cotton today. Business was quiet.

Exports today 3,855, making a total of 5,544,203 for the season. Receipts 4,707. United States Port stocks 1,750,699.

Liverpool cables reported a dull market there with speculation in the negligible and said that trade calling had been supplied by hedging. Houses with Liverpool and some other foreign connections were good buyers here, particularly during the early trading, when the relatively wide difference between October in New York and Liverpool appeared to be an arbitrage. There was also some trade buying in the new crop months, which seemed to somewhat more than offset hedging and scattering liquidation.

STOCKS MOVE HIGHER

ON OPTIMISTIC NEWS

There were optimistic developments for the alcohol industry and these were in the forefront of the market. A few of the steels, motors, farm implement and specialty issues found followers.

The session was a study in slow motion, however, with the price of steel advancing. Transfers totaled only 585,890 shares, compared with 608,020 yesterday. It was the smallest volume for a first day since April 4 last year. The Associated Press average was up .5 of a point at 59.

Most domestic industrial news items made cheerful reading, but the European situation still was a sizable fly in the generally bullish sentiment.

There were optimistic developments for the alcohol industry and these were in the forefront of the market. A few of the steels, motors, farm implement and specialty issues found followers.

Canadian Distilling shares were the most active of the day following a announcement that the treasury had reached an agreement with dominion companies to terminate the liquor duties on liquor imported from the United States during prohibition.

The strength of American whisky equities reflected partly the failure of the new French treaty to ease restrictions on any but the highest priced beverages. There were also reports that some of the concerns were about the new tax controversy with the Pennsylvania authorities.

Expanding earnings and hopes that several of the alcohol corporations would get into dividend-paying class soon were additional helpful factors.

STEEL DEMAND SAID HIGHLY ENCOURAGING

NEW YORK, May 13.—(P)—The trend of steel demand remains "highly encouraging," said Iron Age today in its midweek summary of the iron and steel market.

Steel ingot production has declined only 1-2 of 1 percentage point to 61.1-2 per cent of capacity. Output in many districts has shown no declining trend in previous weeks.

Regarding reports of an impending advance in finished steel prices for the third quarter, the publication declared that "no producer has determined any definite policy on the subject."

The automobile industry, asserted the summary, is contributing heavily to the maintenance of steel business. "Some tonnage is already being placed for June delivery but parts makers are curtailing their takings as a first step in reducing inventories in line with the reduction of the iron Age scrap composite down 41 cents a gross ton to $13.42, or $1.33 less than the year's high level and only 9 cents above the 1935 level. Pig iron and finished steel composites were unchanged."

CROP LOAN DEADLINE IS SET FOR MAY 31

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 13.—(P)—W. J. Larsen, manager of the Federal Reserve Emergency Crop Loan Office here, said today that applications for loans would be accepted after May 31, 1936.

Larsen said he had notified supervisors in each of the 48 states and the District of Columbia, and that he would not apply to southern Florida, where no spring loans have been opened since the summer crop loan season ends in August.

Larsen said the office had made approximately 60,000 loans for $5,000,000 since January 1.

CURRENCY IS STEADY;
BUSINESS HITS TRADEMetals, Oils, Utilities Are Best Performers; Transfers Gain.

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—The curb market developed a slightly steeper undertone today despite the dullness of trading.

An assortment of metals, oils and utilities were the best performers, gains at one time ranging from major fractions to around a point among the leaders. Late profit-taking cut down the gains of the improvement and left a large number of issues unchanged at the close.

Shares retaining a portion of the early advance included Electric Bond & Share, which worked up from a low of 17 1/4 to 17 3/4 and closed at 17 5/8 for a net gain of 1/2 point; Newmont Mining at 83 and Wright Hargreaves at 9 3/8.

Among issues dropping back to close unchanged or a shade lower were Lake Shore Mines, Humble Oil, Great Atlantic & Pacific, Creole Petroleum and Sunshine Mining.

Sales of 171,000 shares compared with 187,000 the day before.

CHEROKEE REFUGE
WILL OPEN FRIDAYFishing To Be Allowed for First Time Since 1929.

Zack D. Cravey, Georgia's game and fish commissioner, announced yesterday that the Cherokee national game refuge will be open to fishing from Friday to June 15.

Official permission to open the refuge was obtained from the United States Forest Service under a cooperative agreement with his department, Cravey said.

The territory has been closed to fishing since 1929 and constant re-stocking has been carried on by both departments.

Cravey said a special license, costing $1 for a two-day fishing period, would be necessary to gain access to the refuge.

The license, he said, may be obtained from the state department of its representatives in the section or from W. A. Woody, district forester in the game refuge.

The refuge is located in Fannin and Gilmer counties.

WITNESS DESCRIBES

COCHRAN BANK RAID

MAON, Ga., May 13.—(AP)—Hoke South, Wynne, admitted robbing the state Bank of Cochran, testified in United States district court today the hold-up last February 10 was "an inside job."

Wynne, called as a defense witness at the trial of Marsden S. Daniels, accused as Wynne's accomplice, said Daniels had nothing to do with it.

Earlier in the trial, Wynne entered a plea of guilty to the robbery. Today he said he was accompanied only by a Jacksonville (Fla.) liquor runner, "who forced me to help him hold up the bank, and threatened to kill me."

Wynne said:

"He told me it was an inside job. When we went into the bank I was scared to death and laid down the sawed-off shotgun I carried. Phillips (Leo L. Phillips, assistant cashier) approached with a pistol and seemed to be pulling the trigger."

The witness said Phillips then looked at Wynne's companion "and smiled. Wynne related that he knew nothing of the present whereabouts of the liquor runner."

Wynne and Daniels were identified by Phillips and a woman bookkeeper in the bank as the robbers.

Daniels is employed by Wynne at his garage in Eastman. Defense witnesses said Daniels enjoyed a good reputation.

WOOLFORD IS NAMED

ON JOB SURVEY BODY

T. Guy Woolford, widely-known Atlanta capitalist, was named yesterday on a committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce to make a nationwide re-employment survey, possibly in cooperation with labor groups, according to reports from Washington.

John W. O'Leary, president of the Alachua and Alachua Institute, was named chairman of the committee. O'Leary proposed the plan for the survey, which was adopted following the recent national chamber convention in Washington.

C. G. Sheppard, president of the Louisiana Central Lumber Company, also was named a member of the committee.

HUGHES TO ATTEMPT

DARE FLIGHT TODAY

CHICAGO, May 13.—(AP)—Howard Hughes, Hollywood color film producer and wealthy aviation enthusiast, announced today he planned to make a breakfast-to-lunch flight from Chicago and Los Angeles tomorrow.

He said he had weighed $50 he could breakfast in Chicago and have lunch in the west coast city. He said the bet was made with a New York friend who he declined to identify, and he would "have to go some to make it."

Hughes, holder of the world's speed record for land planes, flew here from Detroit today. He said after studying weather conditions that he would "make no flight tonight," but gave no reason.

KIDNAPED MISSIONARY

IS ALIVE IN CHINA

MUKDEN, Manchoukuo, May 13.—(AP)—A Chinese letter to the American consulate bearing the signature of the Rev. Father Clarence Joseph Burns today brought the first proof in many weeks that the kidnapped American missionary still is alive.

He was kidnapped on February 5. Negotiations for his release continued, with American authorities holding new hope of early success.

A month ago a native Christian convert was reported to have reached Harbin with an offer for the bandit chief to release Father Burns if pursuing troops were withdrawn.

FLORIAN INDICTED.

DEFUNIAK SPRINGS, Fla., May 13.

(AP)—The Walton county grand jury today indicted J. E. Harbison for first-degree murder in the slaying of E. M. Jenkins, convict camp captain. Jenkins was shot and killed in camp at the Red Bay convict camp last February. Harbison, arrested soon afterwards, denied he fired the shot. He was employed at the camp.

UPWARD TENDENCIES
RULE BOND TRADINGInvestment, Speculative Interest Lacked as Turnover Is Small.

Daily Bond Averages.

(Copyright, 1936, Standard Statistics Co.)

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—A slightly upward tendency ruled in all departments of the listed bond market today, notwithstanding a small turn-over.

Interest in the market, both investment and speculative, was at a low ebb, except in rare instances where special circumstances brought a modest amount of activity, and price changes were for the most part of the fractional variety.

Two issues of Kansas City Southern railroad enjoyed a brisk market on reports that an oil well had been brought in on the company's property in Louisiana and that drilling on the second well had got under way.

The $5 advanced 2 points to 88 1/2 on sales of $77,000, par value, and the $6 of 1950 gained 1 1/2 to 94, on sales of $50,000, par value.

Other rail bonds did little either way. Fractional improvement was registered by Santa Fe 4s, Chesapeake & Potomac 4s, and Missouri Pacific 4s and New York Central 4s.

Utilities and industrials likewise held close to Tuesday's finals. Issues closing unchanged to a shade up included International Telephone & Light Co., International Telephone 5s, and Armstrong-Coke 4s.

United States government bonds, especially longer term treasury and industrial obligations, were steady. Advances ranged from 1/2 to 3/4. Several issues closed unchanged and there were two or three losers.

Further improvement in French government dollar bonds featured the foreign department. The stamped 7 1/2-2s advanced 1 point to 105 1/2 and the unstamped 7s improved 3 1/2 to 174 1/2.

The Associated Press averages ranged from an advance of 1/2 of a point in the rails to a decline of 2 of a point in the industrials.

4 WOUNDED, 2 INJURED
SAN FRANCISCO FIRE

Hat Check Girl in Night
Club Trampled to Death
by Crowd.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—(AP) A torch in the hands of a swaying dancer ignited the draperies of a crowded night club and started a fire that stampeded today in which four persons died and 12 were injured.

A screaming crowd of 60 persons trampled Josephine Dickinson, a hat check girl, to death as it fought through smoke and flame to the one available exit.

Three investigations began immediately. Captain of Police Inspectors Charles E. Smith and his assistant, every night club in town, to see whether similar fire hazards existed.

Besides Miss Dickinson, the dead were Mrs. Elsie Marler, 32, Petaluma, Cal., whose husband had just sold his interest in the place, the Club Shamrock, in the downtown hotel district.

Robert Patterson, 31, Berkeley automobile salesman, John R. Manson, 24, a University of California graduate.

Three of the injured remained in hospitals tonight.

Henry Buckman, manager of the club, said the fire started when a patron reached for one of two blazing torches in the hands of the draperies.

Betty Blossom, the dancer, made a motion as if to light his cigarette, and Miss Blossom suddenly lifted her arm, accidentally sending the flame into the draperies.

Almost instantly the whole flimsy interior was aflame. Patrons and employees were virtually trampled. Singed and choking, the guests charged for the door.

Three members of the orchestra and the Chinese cook crowded into the refrigerator. Firemen released them.

SPECIAL VOTE URGED ON TRAMMELL SEAT

Governor Sholtz is One of Five Candidates for Senatorship.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 13.—(P)—Another candidate for the United States senate seat left vacant by the death of Park Trammell today urged an immediate session of the state democratic executive committee to call a special primary election for selecting the party's nominee.

Claude Pepper, of Tallahassee, joined former Governor Doyle E. Carlton, of Tampa, in requesting quick action be taken to hold a vote in the regular June primaries.

"Prompt action will allay growing fears now being expressed in the press and by the people that an effort will be made to nominate a candidate by some method other than submitting the matter to the people," he said.

"I want it to be decided by a committee freshly elected by the people."

The chairman added state law required candidates to qualify 30 days before a primary. "I am going to comply with the law," he said.

A new committee twice the size of the present group will be elected in the June 2 primary. It will include one woman and one man from each county, instead of a male representative from each.

Hodges said he personally favored a special primary, and believed one would be called by the committee to be held about September 1.

In the 1934 primary, Pepper was narrowly beaten for the nomination by Trammell.

Governor Dave Sholtz, C. O. Andrews, of Orlando, and Robert J. Boone, of Miami, are other announced candidates for the democratic nomination.

From Judge Allen E. Walker, of Winter Haven, chairman of the state republican executive committee, came an announcement his party would enter a candidate in the November general election.

The Governor left for Washington without appointing a senator to serve until the unexpected term of Trammell, ending in January, 1941, is filled in the November election.

He said he would confer with federal departments about PWA and WPA projects in Florida.

DROP IN TEMPERATURE FORECAST FOR ATLANTA

Shifting winds will bring a seven-degree drop in temperatures in Atlanta today, according to forecasts from the United States Weather Bureau.

Rains that were scheduled for Atlanta late yesterday or last night failed to materialize but the changing direction of the wind was to bring a slight relief from the high temperatures of the last several days.

Today the mercury is expected to hover between 60 and 80 degrees. Yesterday the highest temperature was 86 degrees after a start at 64 early in the morning.

Fair weather will continue.

HART CLOVER FIELDS ARE TO BE INSPECTED

HARTWELL, Ga., May 13.—(P)—Hart county farmers are in clover and they will have a celebration Friday to tell others how they got it.

Hundreds of farmers and agricultural experts from throughout the state are expected for the annual clover demonstrations here.

Colorful fields of clover, now in full bloom, will be visited, and there will be demonstrations and explanations of various uses of the crop and of new farm equipment.

Begun some years ago, the clover-growing plan has attracted unusual attention this year because it fits well into the federal government's soil conservation program, says L. C. Westbrook, county agricultural agent.

Inner Workings of N. Y. Vice Ring Bared by Witness in Luciano Trial

NEW YORK, May 13.—(P)—The inner workings of what Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey called a million-dollar month vice syndicate were described today by the first witness at the trial of Charles (Lucky) Luciano and nine other men charged with compulsory prostitution.

The witness, Rose Cohen, 25, admitted her profession and then told how she had been "booked" from house to house, how she divided her earnings, and how her case was "fixed in court" when she was arrested.

The woman, who said under cross-examination that her real name was Renee Gallo, was one of nearly a hundred material witnesses rounded up in a series of spectacular raids by Dewey agents.

Dewey, in outlining the case to a supreme court jury, charged that Luciano was the czar of a vice empire that extended from New York city into New England. He pictured Luciano as living luxuriously in a fashionable hotel while his lieutenants handled the details of the vice ring.

In reply, Defense Counsel George M. Levy declared Luciano "never had anything to do with this rotten conspiracy," but had earned the $200,000 a gambler during the last few years.

The lawyer contended that Luciano, who was placed at the top of New York's public enemy list last fall by Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, was the victim of "the muddled imaginings of broken-down prostitutes."

The Cohen, or Gallo woman, named three of Luciano's co-defendants in her testimony, saying she had conferred with them after being arrested in a disorderly house. The case was "fixed," she said, and she returned to work.

During her first week, she testified, she earned $200, of which $130 went to the Adams, $18 went for board, and $5 for a physician's fee.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Edward Carmichael, Silver Springs, Fla., president; G. Chandler, Tallahassee, Fla., vice president; Mrs. D. G. Flanagan, Macon, second vice president; Leo Moddy, Gulfport, Miss., secretary and treasurer.

Plans for raising the standards of tourist camps throughout the country were discussed.

The meeting adjourned for a barbecue at Lakeside park and later in the day delegates were taken on a tour of the city and the Indian mounds. Following the tour, the convention was officially closed.

24 ARMED PRISONERS ESCAPE IN GUN FIGHT

McAlester Foreman Used as Shield; 10 Shot, 6 Nabbed, 5 Fugitive.

MCALISTER, Okla., May 13.—(P)—Striking with sudden savagery today, two dozen dangerous convicts broke out of the state penitentiary, killed a prison foreman whom they employed as a shield, killed two guards and wounded another while 10 of their bloody band were being shot down by officers.

Six of the escaping convicts were recaptured unhurt.

The body of C. D. Powell, prison brickyard foreman, was dumped from a speeding motor car as it raced to downtown McAlester, about a mile from the prison. Officers believed at least five convicts and two guards, held as hostages, were in the car.

One convict escaped in a prison ice truck. Possemen were uncertain whether the other two fugitives were fleeing with the leaders in the commandeered automobile.

Armed With Knives. The convicts, armed with knives, seized Powell and Guard Tuck Cope as they lined up for noon roll call. Using the officers as shields, the prisoners forced guards at the prison gate and on the walls to surrender their weapons.

Snatching up the guns, the leaders of the break opened fire, wounded Guard Bob Gossett four times and fled in his automobile, taking Powell and the officers, Cope and Victor Conn with them.

Conn's absence was not discovered until hours after the break.

Shot through the head, Powell's body was dumped from the car as it sped toward downtown McAlester, about a mile from the prison.

The leaders of the outbreak were the ones who got away.

The half dozen convicts recaptured unhurt were picked up as they attempted to commandeer an automobile on a highway near the prison.

The lone fugitive who took the prisonable hotel while his lieutenants handled the details of the vice ring.

In reply, Defense Counsel George M. Levy declared Luciano "never had anything to do with this rotten conspiracy," but had earned the $200,000 a gambler during the last few years.

Talmadge's Son Supports Father In Georgia Debate, Loses Decision

ATHENS, Ga., May 13.—(P)—Governor Talmadge's son, Herman, championed his father's administration in a college debate tonight and lost the decision.

The Phi Kappa and Demosthenian societies of the University of Georgia debated the question: Resolved, That Eugene Talmadge should be re-elected Governor.

A Demosthenian team of young Talmadges, David Walker of Griffin, and H. C. Calhoun, of Columbus, took the affirmative.

The Phi Kappas, to which the Governor once belonged, took the negative. Morris Abram, of Fitzgerald; Albert Menard, of Macon, and Sol Singer, of Danville, represented the Phi Kappas.

Young Talmadge contended his father's greatest credit has been his financial management of the state. "I have never heard of a Governor with such a record," he said, adding that taxes have been reduced, debts erased and at the same time "more money spent for education than during the term of any other Governor."

on ice truck, later abandoned it 14 miles away and was believed surrounded in a forest.

Fugitives Armed. The ruthless five still at large had two rifles and two pistols. Their savage slaying of Foreman Powell aroused grave fears for the life of Guard Cope.

Thirty possemen trailed the fugitives and bloodhounds were used in the forest.

Warden Roy Kenny said the motor car fugitives had been seen racing toward Seale, northwest of here. He sent 30 heavily armed guards in pursuit.

Governor E. W. Marland said "all available forces" would be put in the manhunt. Colonel Charles Daley, state Crime Bureau chief, sent nine operatives here from Oklahoma City.

Ray Terrill, one-time associate of the Kines brothers, train and bank robbers who terrorized the southwest several years ago, was among the wounded convicts. He was not seriously hurt.

S. C. SOLONS CASTIGATE TALMADGE ON LABOR

Attack Comes As 40-Hour Mill Bill Wins Reading Approval.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 13.—(P)—The senate gave second reading approval tonight to a bill to limit textile labor to a 40-hour week but refused to strike out a provision making the act inoperative unless Georgia and North Carolina enact similar legislation.

An amendment to eliminate the provision was proposed by Senator John F. Williams, of Aiken, who said by its inclusion "you say that manufacturers and workers who want this law can't have it until Eugene Talmadge, who has put men and women in a barbed wire and surrounded them with troops, gives his consent."

Senator Highs, of Oconee, said the measure without the provision would measure without the provision would put South Carolina textile firms at such a disadvantage they could not compete with Georgia and North Carolina mills.

"If you want to destroy the textile industry in South Carolina, pass this bill without regard to other states," Senator Thurmond, of Edgefield, said. "Some state has got to take the lead," said Senator Nicholson, of Greenwood. "I can't see why we have to wait for Georgia or North Carolina."

Senator Harris, of Cherokee, citing strikes at Gaffney, said the bill would "stop a lot of them" and added: "Georgia will never have any laws for the working people as long as it has Eugene Talmadge."

Hugh's motion to table the Williams amendment was adopted 22 to 16 after more than two hours of debate.

When the bill was taken up, an amendment defining an emergency—a word that caused a hitch during the day session—was adopted.
